Double Header Train Going at High Speed Derailed at Weston---None Killed and No Injuries Believed Fatal.

Thirty persons, most of them passengers, were hurt, none of them fatally and a locomotive and four cars were wrecked shortly after noon when the Boston & Albany noon express train bound from Boston to New York was derailed at Weston near the Riverside bridge.

The train was speeding westward on track four. It was signalled to take track three and in making the flying switch the second locomotive of the express train of eleven cars jumped from the rails.

AVIATORS WAIT WORD TO BEGIN FLIGHT OVER CITY

HARVARD AVIATION FIELD, Squantum, Sept. 2.—With their aeroplanes in best condition and with engines tuned up, several of the leading aviators who are to participate in the aviation meet waited anxiously for the stiff southwest wind to abate this afternoon so they might make trial flights.

Among these were Clifford B. Harmon, with his Farman biplane; Cromwell Dixon, with his dirigible gas balloon; Charles F. Willard, with his Curtiss biplane, and William M. (Billy) Hilliard, with a Burgess-Curtiss biplane.

The meet opens officially at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning.

MR. HARMON WILL DROP SOME BOMBS.

Clifford B. Harmon, the millionaire amateur, whose latest stunt was a sensational night flight across Long Island Sound, is scheduled to lead off to-morrow morning in a bomb-dropping trial.

It was thought in the forenoon that Cromwell Dixon would be unable, if he flew to-day, to make his anxiously awaited dirigible trip to Boston Common. But at noon Dixon said he would make the Field-to-Boston flight between 4 and 6 o'clock p. m. if wind conditions allowed. He is to alight on Boston Common if possible. He will bear letters of invitation to the meet from the Harvard Aeronautical Society to Governor Draper and Mayor Fitzgerald.

Walter Brookins, the altitude flier, told Wilbur Wright that he wished to make a flight this afternoon if possible. Wright, Brookins and Ralph Johnstone brought down Brookins' machine (a Wright biplane) from the Huntington avenue freight yards down to the field over the road, towing it behind an auto. The machine was put in the east hangar, next to the Harmon machine. While Johnstone went to work to see that the machine was shipshape, Wright and Brookins hurried back to the city after Johnstone's machine.

Brookins May Have Field.

Charles J. Gildden of the contest committee assured Brookins that he could have a refusal of the field from this noon to 2 p. m. to-morrow. This means that Brookins can make a flight by naming an hour that does not conflict with previous bookings.

Charles Foster Williams and his brother Henry, who assists him, went over their Curtiss biplane with care, to see that every part was ready for its necessary strain. The Curtiss biplane in the Willard camp was studied with interest by Grahame-White and A. V. Roe, the English aviators.

The latter also gave close attention to the Burgess-Curtiss biplane which "Billy" Hilliard was setting up. They were particularly interested in the new eight-cylinder motor just sent in from Springfield, said to be one of the most powerful motors ever turned out for aeronautics.

Mr. Gildden gave instructions to all men concerned with directing or assisting at the meet to have everything ready for the official opening at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning, Mr. Gildden, speaking of the opening said:

"We start at 6 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Harmon in a bomb-throwing trial is

N. Y. COUNTIES SHOW BIG GAIN IN POPULATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The census bureau to-day made public the following population returns:

New York (counties) Nassau 83,930; last census 55,448; Suffolk, 96,138; last census, 71,587.

Cities: Oyster Bay, including Farmingdale and Sneciffe villages, 21,802; last census, 16,354.

The figures now compiled show that New York City has more people than Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, whose combined total is 4,340,012. Nine Pacific coast and mountain States embracing nearly the entire territory from the top of the Rockies to the Pacific, fall almost 1,000,000 short o f the great city's total.

The city nearest to New York in the entire world is Paris, with 2,763,393. Tokio being the fourth largest with 2,186,079, and Berlin next with 2,040,148.

There are many countries in the world whose population falls short of New York city's. On the entire continent of Australia, exclusive of aborigines, there were but 4,273,509 in 1908. Ireland has 4,374, 138; Bulgaria, 4,158,406; Denmark, 2,859, 000; Greece, 2,632,000; Norway, 2,359,786, and Switzerland, 3,530,000.

In the suburban country which is embraced in New York's metropolitan area there are more than 2,000,000 inhabitants, according to estimates based on the partial returns for New Jersey, New York and Connecticut towns and of this great army of suburbanites, the majority earn their bread in New York.

INSURGENT WINS IN IDAHO PRIMARY

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 2.—Burton L. French, insurgent candidate for Congress, has won by 5,000 majority over Representative T. R. Hamer for the Republican nomination in the State primary, according to the latest figures to-day. The returns indicate victories for Governor J. H. Brady over Benjamin O'Neil, Paul Claggstone and George Fletcher by 2,000 majority. The Democrats named J. N. Haiwre for Governor and Arthur Bowen for Congress.

WOMAN ATTACKED, IS DYING

CLINTON, Sept. 2.—Miss Catherine A. Kelley, thirty-six years of age, of this town, lies in the Clinton Hospital to-day at the point of death as the result of an attack made upon her early to-day by an unknown man. With an iron bar, Miss Kelley's assailant struck her several times upon the head, beating her into unconsciousness.

The police are at work on the case, and Robert M. Molt of Worcester, of the State police, is here. Chief Charles M. Sanderson of the local police is giving Officer Molt every assistance in his power.

Miss Kelley, who recovered consciousness at the hospital, was able to give the police but a meager description of her would-be murderer. Dr. James J. Goodwin, assistant medical examiner, who attended Miss Kelley holds out but scant hope for her recovery.

The attack took place at a dark and lonely spot in Sterling street at about 12:20 this morning. Miss Kelley had spent yesterday in Worcester, and she came home on the last electric car, which arrived here at 12:10.

Her Skull Fractured.

She alighted at Main and Sterling streets, the stopping place nearest her home in Sterling street when opposite the Bellevue Worsted Company's plant a man leaped from the shadows and struck her a tremendous blow on the head with an iron bar.

The woman fell to the ground, but the man continued his attack. She was rendered unconscious, probably by the first blow. Her skull was fractured and three fingers of her right hand with which she vainly sought to ward off the blows were broken.

Miss Kelley's assailant dragged her unconscious body into the yard of the Clinton Concrete Company, where he must have been frightened for he fled without inflicting any other injury on the unconscious woman.

Fear Prevents Aid.

Blood spots on the grass and concrete seats in the yard as well as a blood clotted iron bar fifteen inches in length, one and three-quarters inches in width and a half-inch thick were all examined by State Officer Molt and Chief Sanderson to-day.

Miss Kelley recovered consciousness a half hour after the attack sufficiently to crawl to the house of an Italian family in the Concrete company's yard. She rapped repeatedly on the door, but the family was afraid to admit her. Then she crawled to the home of Joseph Perreault, close by, but here, too, fear prevented her receiving aid.

Nearly an hour later she managed to reach the home of John L. McGee, where Mrs. McGee readily recognized her and took her in. Mr. McGee telephoned the police and Dr. Goodwin. Miss Kelley was hurried to the Clinton Hospital.

She said a tall man, clad in dark clothes was her assailant. She had no other description to give, and knows nothing after the first blow had been dealt her. Officer Molt came here at 10:30 this morning, and since then every available officer has been trying to find some clew to the desperado.

Could be used of him.

James Nugent, brother of John, had a sensational encounter with the suspect. James is a hunter, and knows much of woodcraft, was in the depths of the forest, and as night came on was face to face with a man.

The stranger advanced boldly toward Nugent and striking a match took a long look at Nugent, concealing his face in the shadows at the same time. Then the man disappeared and Nugent hurried to his home and told his brother John. They returned to the place, but the stranger had vanished.

Since then the man has been seen several times by different persons in Hopkinton and Milford and nearly always in the vicinity of the abandoned quarries there.

Chief of Police Charles F. Gannon of Framingham notified the Quincy police and Lieutenant McKay has been here since Tuesday making an investigation. He believes the man may be Restelli and intends to organize men and search the quarries and woods thoroughly.

SAYS DR. COOK IS BACK IN ARCTIC

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 2.—A letter from Godhaven, Greenland, says it is certain that Dr. Frederick A. Cook is on his way to find the records which he has left in the North. Recently Eskimos on the steamer stopped in Godhaven and an American steamer stopped in Godhaven harbor for an hour, apparently continuing the reports in the American papers about Dr. Cook's having started for the Arctic regions to recover his instruments and papers.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, New York, Sept. 2.—Fighting to retain their position in second place and to prevent the encroachment of the Highlanders on that position, the Red Sox are preparing to play the best game of the year against New York. While a loss of one game would not materially affect the averages, the Speed Boys can ill afford to lose even one of this series of three and still hope to remain where they are in the club standing.

New York, in the event of winning all three of the series would get the position next to the Athletics, and this Patsy Donovan's men mean to prevent. Eddie Cicotte will probably pitch for Boston, and Jimmy Vaughn looks good for the Highlanders' bonnets. But one game will be played to-day, the double header being scheduled for to-morrow.

VETO ON AUTO STIRS WOBURN RESIDENTS

Woburn's City Council doesn't intend to stand for Mayor Murray's $1,000 automobile which the executive bought for the police department. To-day the whole city is talking about the Council's vote of 7 to 5 against instructing the City Treasurer to pay the auto bill. The Council gave its reason that "no appropriation has been voted by the City Council sufficient to meet such expenditure." Alderman Johnson offered and defended the order. He said the automobile had been bought contrary to the letter and spirit of the city charter and that the bill had never been before the committee on accounts.

UNCLE GOES BAIL FOR P. O. CLERK

Albert H. Cook, the Whitman postoffice clerk who is accused of embezzling letters containing money from the government and who lays his downfall to a local gambling club, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes to-day. He waived examination and was held in $500 bonds for the Federal Grand Jury. His uncle, Asa Cook of Whitman, furnished the bonds, giving as security a bank book with deposits of $1,000.

WALPOLE STREET GROUNDS, Sept. 2.—The Doves meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in a doubleheader this afternoon in a struggle, the result of which will be that the fate of both teams will probably be decided before the series is completed. If the Doves put two victories over on Brooklyn, as Fred Lake hopes they will, then Boston will find herself well on the road to seventh place, and the Brooklyn team in imminent danger of dropping into the cellar.

Curtis is slated to pitch the first game against Rucker of Brooklyn, and Buster Brown will probably be on the mound for the second. Brooklyn is as anxious as Boston to win this series, and good games are looked for.

FRENCH AVIATOR ON 335-MILE TRIP

ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—A crowd of 15,000 persons assembled to-day to witness the departure of M. Bialowiez, the aviator who reached here last night in a flight from Paris to Bordeaux, a total distance of 335 miles. Hundreds stayed up all night. Bialowiez was up early to-day, had the machine and after judging the weather conditions declared that he hoped to continue the flight without delay. "I am confident that I can make better speed than on the trip here," he said, "though I covered the 35 miles from the starting point at less th 70 minutes."

TURKEY READY TO WAR AGAINST GREECE

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Turkish-Greek situation to-day again caused alarm here following the receipt of dispatches saying that the Turks were massing troops and guns on the frontier.

Sixteen batteries of quick firing guns have been sent to Kastoriti, ostensibly for maneuvres.

A serious indication is the cancelling of all leaves of absence of officers.

FISHING SCHOONER LOSES TWO MEN

LIVERPOOL, N. S., Sept. 2.—The schooner Clintis of Gloucester put into port here and reported two men missing. The men were John Parker and Charles Sweeney, both of whom are single. The Clintis was fishing about sixty miles off Cape Sable, and the men were out in their dory, on August 25, when a heavy fog came on. They disappeared in the fog and were not seen again.

PICKPOCKETS ARE JAILED AT LOWELL

Lowell, Sept. 2.—Four pickpockets who were rounded up at the Middlesex street depot Thursday were to-day sentenced to one year each in the House of Correction in the Lowell police court. The men were Thomas J. Kelly, alias Thomas Berry of Boston; John W. Crane, alias "Big John" Kane of Philadelphia; Ernest Capasso of Philadelphia; and Frank Gilbert, alias Nathan Succerman of New York.

HUNT RESTELLI SUSPECT HIDING NEAR MILFORD

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Sept. 2.—Lieutenant D. R. McKay of Quincy and the police of Framingham are to-day looking for a strangely acting man who is hanging the woods and abandoned quarries in Ashland, Hopkinton and Milford, and who they believe, may be Louis G. Restelli, the missing Quincy murderer. The suspicions individual the police are looking for has been in this vicinity for some time. Gardens have been robbed and fruit trees stripped. Descriptions furnished the police by persons who have seen the man shaking from sight into the woods or underbrush tally remarkably with that of the long sought Restelli. The fact that Restelli once worked in Milford and would know all about the excellent hiding places the abandoned quarries would furnish makes the officers all the more anxious to find the man.

John Nugent of Hopkinton first reported the mysterious man. He told the police that he had seen the man lurking in the shadows of trees and rocks in the vicinity of Echo several times, but each time the man disappeared before a close view could be had of him.

James Nugent, brother of John, had a sensational encounter with the suspect. James is a hunter, and knows much of woodcraft, was in the depths of the forest, and as night came on was face to face with a man.

The stranger advanced boldly toward Nugent and striking a match took a long look at Nugent, concealing his face in the shadows at the same time. Then the man disappeared and Nugent hurried to his home and told his brother John. They returned to the place, but the stranger had vanished.

Since then the man has been seen several times by different persons in Hopkinton and Milford and nearly always in the vicinity of the abandoned quarries there.

Chief of Police Charles F. Gannon of Framingham notified the Quincy police and Lieutenant McKay has been here since Tuesday making an investigation. He believes the man may be Restelli and intends to organize men and search the quarries and woods thoroughly.

O'MEARA FIXES NEW RATES FOR TAXICAB RIDES

A new schedule of rates for taxicabs in Boston will be put in force on September 20. It is by order of Police Commissioner O'Meara whose office gives him authority in such matters. The changes relate to minimum rates of fare and the new rules read:

"For the first half mile or fraction thereof, 40 cents; present rate, 30 cents; rate asked by the cab owners, 50 cents.

"New rate to be 10 cents for each additional quarter of a mile; present rate, 10 cents for a quarter of a mile in some parts of the city and for a sixth of a mile in other parts.

"A new allowance of 20 cents for the whole journey for each person in excess of one, asked for by the cab owners.

"No change in the allowance for waiting time, the cab owners having asked for 10 cents for each four minutes instead of for each six minutes."

Three weeks ago the taxicab companies asked Commissioner O'Meara for permission to increase the fare scale, which was fixed by the Police Commissioner when the companies began operations in Boston. The argument they advanced for the change was that under the old regulations the companies were not able to pay expenses.

Aviator

In the "Male Situation Wanted" column of the Classified Department yesterday there was the advertisement of a young man who wishes to become an "aviator."

The young man deserves to succeed, because he is daring and knows how to go at things the right way.

The classified columns of the American are searched by employers looking for help and by people out of work seeking employment or striving to better their condition. The department works both ways.

UNITED STATES PLANS A HARD CHOLERA FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Following the release of the liner Lusitania to-day, after it had been held a night at quarantine, it was learned that the government's fight to bar cholera from America will be the hardest campaign of the kind it has ever waged. Every incoming steamer from now on will be subjected to an unprecedented severe examination—and the bars are firmer than they have ever been before.

These precautions will be taken at every port in the country. It was declared on good authority to-day that the health officers had received secret advices saying that many suspects and victims of cholera had fled from their European homes with the intention of seeking a refuge in the United States.

With cholera prevalent in four European countries and bubonic plague also making its appearance in Russia, the situation requires the utmost caution, according to the authorities.

Though the situation is reported as improving in Germany and Hull, no change will be taken in regard to passengers from those countries and the inspection of Russians has been made more stringent because of the spread of the disease there.

ARTIST SAYS RICH SUICIDE IS HER HUSBAND

Local interest was added to the suicide in New York of Sol J. Hirsh, the millionaire clothing manufacturer, who killed himself in Hotel Knickerbocker after landing from a European trip, when it was learned to-day that the young woman who claimed to be his bride, Miss Jeanette Pelletier, said that she had relatives in Boston.

Miss Pelletier is a graduate of the Chicago Art Institute. The question that has been raised by the relatives of Mr. Hirsh, who declare that the union not married, may bring on a bitter legal fight over the disposition of his fortune.

Miss Margaret Dorfee, chum and intimate friend of Miss Pelletier, who lived with the young artist at No. 4433 Indiana avenue, Chicago, gave out a statement in her statement, according to dispatches, that Hirsh and Miss Pelletier were married on July 5.

Says Couple Eloped.

At first Miss Gerber declared that the couple had eloped to Milwaukee and were married there, but to-day she changed her first statement somewhat and declared that if the couple were not married in Milwaukee they were married in some other northern city.

Through search to-day of the marriage records in Milwaukee, extending back to June 1, shows no record of the marriage. A search of the records of the State Board of Health of Wisconsin in the offices at Madison also failed to show that a duplicate of the license was on file there, as the law requires. According to the Wisconsin law, a duplicate of a marriage license must be filed within thirty days.

Relatives Deny Marriage.

Chicago relatives of Hirsh began a search to-day for Miss Pelletier, and for some evidence that Hirsh had married her. Hirsh's body has been sent back to Chicago. The friend and European traveling companion of the dead millionaire, Walter Reed of Chicago, accompanied the remains. Mrs. Hirsh, wife of the Knickerbocker suicide from New York, it was declared to-day, that there was no truth in the report that Hirsh or Mr. Reed during their stay at the Hotel Knickerbocker had ever called for either man and that no one had appeared there as "Mrs. Solomon Hirsh."

DEMURRAGE RULES SCORED BY MERCHANTS

Opposition to the new demurrage rules which the railroads of New England propose to put into effect on October 1 is expressed in a statement made by the special demurrage committee of the different New England commercial organizations. To-day the merchants of Boston and New England are ignorance of the new demurrage rules, which constitute a tribute.

The committee says that the New Haven's defiance of the new demurrage rules which the Interstate Commerce Commission has seen asked to suspend until a hearing can be had before that body, was misleading. It says that the proposed rules have been a matter of contention between the railroads and the New England shipping public for a period of the delay of putting into effect was caused by the wastefulness of the shippers.

Shippers' Position Clear.

The committee tells of two mass meetings held at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, where not a voice was heard against the new rules. A committee was appointed, and it waited twice upon a railroad representative and made clear the position of New England shippers. The shippers made it plain that under conditions in New England different from those in other parts of the country, and that five days is as long as should be time from 96 to 96 hours as at present. The United States would ask for commodious 72 hours.

The statement says that the railroads seem to think that the new rules are given the same no those of all the other parts of the country, and that it is not so that the Texas railroads or roads in other countries have not adopted the rules. They have been the cause of much in Chicago and this.

Calls Admission "Astonishing."

It is declared that the admission of the roads that demurrage is to be charged as high water or snow prevent the unloading of cars is "rather astonishing." It says the rule under these conditions of not be enforced before a court. It stated that cars are detained in New ...gland proportionately longer than in ...e parts of the country. The demurrage committee, of which D. G. Tyer of ...alston Chamber of Commerce is chairman, demands of the Interstate Commerce ...mission a fair and full hearing before ...e new demurrage rules are to be put ...effect.

Battle with Rebels in Philippines Is Near.

MANILA—Hard pressed by constabulary, Simeon Mundao, the bandit leader, is making a last stand in the hills of Nueva Ecaya, according to despatches received to-day. It is believed that a battle is a matter of a few hours. The troops were aided by natives, who wish to throw off the yoke of the lawless leaders. Four Belgian and one Algyipian priest have been freed by Mundao, so close are his pursuers.

Noted Counsellor for Crippen.

LONDON—The power of the big defence fund provided for Dr. H. H. Crippen, accused of murdering his wife, Belle Elmore, was strikingly illustrated to-day when it was made known that Crippen's counsel will probably be Edward Marshall Hall, K. C., one of the most prominent counsellors in England. Mr. Hall has figured in as many big cases as counsellor as has Arthur Newton as solicitor. It was reported that Mr. Hall had been retained by the mysterious woman who has furnished the fund for Crippen's defence.

Canadian Mail Service.

LONDON—Important developments in regard to the British-Canadian mail service are imminent, according to the Central News, which says that the agreement between the Allen line and the Canadian Pacific will not be renewed. The Allen line will handle the service, it is stated, with three turbine steamers of 20,000 tons with a speed of twenty-two knots, plans for which are now being made.

Positive Electric Ions.

LONDON—At a meeting of the British Association at Sheffield Sir W. W. Thomson, the eminent Cambridge physicist, read a paper in which he suggested the probable discovery of positive ions of electricity. With negative ions, usually called electrons, the scientific world was familiar, but practically nothing was known of positive ions, Sir W. W. Thomson said.

Kaiser Wilhelm Praises Taft.

BERLIN—At the dinner following the Emperor's review of his troops, Myron T. Herrick and Henry W. Taft were among the guests. Emperor William engaged Messrs. Taft and Herrick in conversation and both the Americans were charmed by his agreeable personality. He sent his compliments to President Taft, for whom he expressed his admiration to Mr. Herrick.

Czar Hides in a Cafe.

BERLIN—The Czar of Russia, inspecting the baths, spring and park at Bad Nauheim, was recognized by the crowds and he received a hearty greeting. The Russian sovereign, however, did not like the publicity and took refuge in a nearby cafe, staying there until he could make his escape in an automobile.

YOUNG THAW GETS A BRIDE IF HE'S 'GOOD'

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A guarantee made by Mrs. William Thaw, 2d, of Pittsburg, that her son, William, will reform his habits, accompanies an announcement of his engagement to Miss Gladys V. Bradley of Bridgeport, Ct. Mrs. Thaw is a sister-in-law of Harry Kendall Thaw, now serving a sentence in Matteawan Insane Asylum for slaying Stanford White. William Thaw is therefore Harry's nephew.

William, who has a most unsavory reputation as a rounder, has been a suitor for Miss Bradley's hand for a long time. It was not until the boy's mother agreed to bind him in restraint and be responsible for his conduct that Miss Bradley accepted the young man. The date of the wedding has not yet been determined.

William Thaw is best known for the drinking record he established at the Allegheny Country Club, in Pittsburg. On a wager he drank seventy glasses of brandy and soda and lived to tell the tale. For days he lay at the point of death in a Pittsburg hospital. His mother took him into court and undertook to have him adjudged an habitual drunkard. The boy pleaded so hard, however, that she relented and his conduct was fair for six months. Then he broke out again.

CARTLOAD OF CENTS STOLEN BY 2 BOYS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Henry Bier, the ten-year-old son of Morris Bier, proprietor of a bakery at No. 114 Willow avenue, Hoboken, and George Abrams, fourteen years old, of No. 108 Ferry street, that city, confided to Recorder John J. McGovern, before whom they were arraigned, that they had a dandy time with 6,800 cent pieces and $17 in bills which they stole from Baker Bier's safe.

VANNUTELLI SAYS MASS IN HISTORIC QUEBEC CHURCH

Papal Legate to Eucharistic Congress Visits Shrine of St. Anne; Sails for Montreal.

QUEBEC, Sept. 2.—Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, papal legate to the eucharistic congress, which opens at Montreal tomorrow, to-day celebrated low mass at the historic basilica, Quebec's cathedral. The most prominent Catholics of the city attended.

From the basilica the cardinal, accompanied by Cardinal Logue and under the guidance of Archbishop Begin, visited the historic points of the city. Throngs lined the streets as the prelate passed, with bared and bowed heads. At many points children gathered, throwing flowers in his path.

The cardinal visited the shrine of Saint Anne de Beaupre, going there by motor car from the basilica. This afternoon's program was given over to an inspection of the city.

The Government steamer Lady Grey was put at the disposal of the prelate and delegates to the congress, arrangements having been made for her departure for Montreal at 4:30 p. m.

The distinguished visitors will be received upon landing in Montreal by J. E. Guerin, Mayor of the city, and by representatives of the Dominion and Provincial governments. The reception ceremonies will take place on a specially constructed platform, surmounted by an elaborate canopy, which has been erected on the dock at the foot of McGill street. A distinguished company of citizens, present by invitation, will participate in the ceremony.

The Sixty-fifth, Canada's crack French-Canadian regiment, will provide a guard of honor for the prelate, while at a little distance a squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, sent by the Dominion Government from St. Johns, Que., will stand ready, mounted and emparkened, ready to escort the Cardinal through the streets of the city to the palace of the Archbishop, where he will stay while here.

Addresses of welcome will be read by the Mayor and others expressive of the pleasure of Montreal and of Canada in general at the visit of the Pope's representative. After the Legate's reply a procession will be formed and headed by the dragoons, the Cardinal Legate will be escorted to the Archbishop's palace.

There is already a big influx of delegates and visitors to the congress. The Empress of Ireland, which brought Cardinal Vannutelli and Legate, also brought nearly three hundred European delegates. Most of these are members of the clergy, and there was also a sprinkling of prominent lay delegates among them.

The official opening of the congress will not take place until Tuesday evening, when the first meeting will be held at the Notre Dame church. This will mark the beginning of a series of meetings which will be held at various churches and halls throughout Montreal, at all of which the church doctrine will be made the subject of special study.

Midnight Mass for Men.

Probably the most noteworthy event of the early part of the week will be a midnight mass for men at the Notre Dame church on Wednesday. This edifice, said to have the largest seating capacity of any church in America, will be thronged for the occasion. It will ordinarily seat with comfort 15,000 worshippers, but the seats have been taken out and it is expected that not less than 20,000 will be in attendance at this service.

Another notable feature will be on Friday afternoon when the children's procession will be held. The children of all the Catholic schools in the city and of every parish in and about the island of Montreal will contribute to this occasion. The organizers of this feature expect to have from 20,000 to 25,000 juveniles take part in it.

On Friday also pontifical high mass will be celebrated in the park near Mount Royal. At this service the principal address will be delivered by Archbishop O'Connell of Boston.

All these will lead up to the great and culminating events of Sunday, September 11, which will open with a pontifical high mass at which the Cardinal Legate will officiate. This will be held in St. James's Cathedral in the morning. The afternoon will be given up to the great eucharistic procession, which will start from the Notre Dame Church, cover about three miles of street, and end on the mountain side where mass will be celebrated on a magnificent altar built for the occasion.

NEW MEDICAL DISCOVERY

For All Skin Troubles.

A chemist who was convinced that the old method of taking internal remedies to cure skin diseases was erroneous, has discovered that an extract from a particular part of a well-known tree possessed antiseptic and curative properties on the skin tissues. It was, however, found that this valuable vegetable extract was difficult to compound with other ingredients necessary to present it in a form convenient to use. After further investigations and experiments a method of special treatment was devised, resulting in a combination of ingredients possessing to a marked degree valuable therapeutic properties, the like of which has never before been produced. This important product is known as Cadum. Since its introduction Cadum has cured many cases of chronic eczema and other unsightly, irritating and distressing skin diseases, and this after other treatments have failed. Cadum stops the terrible itching of eczema at once and begins the healing process with the first application, in action is still more remarkable in less serious skin troubles, such as hives, rashes, pimples, blotches, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, psoriasis, ringworm, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, itching piles, scurvy, blackheads, scabs, etc. Many of the results effected by Cadum may be truly called remarkable. It destroys disease-producing germs, allays inflammation, and is soothing and healing to the skin. Trial box 10c.; large box 25c. At all druggists.

MARTIAL LAW IN SPAIN DUE TO BIG STRIKE

MADRID, Sept. 2.—Rioting was resumed to-day at Bilbao and other points in the north, as the troops on hand vainly struggled to quiet the strikers.

Reinforcements were to-day ordered to strategic points to enforce martial law, following the suspension of the constitution.

A general strike at Barcelona and elsewhere in Catalonia was threatened to-day and many trades quit work at various points. Scores of factories have shut down, locking out thousands of employes and adding to the unrest.

At Saragossa not a newspaper was printed to-day, and nearly every business was at a standstill as the result of the strike declared by twenty-two unions.

General De Bourbon, in command of the troops at Bilbao, to-day sent a long report to the government. Though its exact nature was kept secret, it was reported on good authority that it contained an appeal for reinforcements.

The national labor leaders to-day rushed their plans for a general strike throughout the nation.

They believe that the sentiment among the working classes for such a drastic movement has gained strength since the rolling off of the first general strike ordered for August 27.

Each report causes more alarm. It is stated that the clericals are supporting the movement for a general strike in the hope of embarrassing the government.

ABRUZZI FOILS '13 HOODOO' AT DINNER PARTY

ROME, Sept. 2.—The Duke of the Abruzzi recently invited a few acquaintances, including several ladies, to a midnight supper at Gressoney-St. Jean, a little watering place near Aosta.

Just as they were about to sit down to table somebody noticed that the company numbered thirteen—the Duke and twelve guests. The Duke merely laughed when the old superstition was called to mind, but as he noticed that some of the ladies were uneasy he summoned the head waiter and asked him to suggest some one who could make the number fourteen.

All the other inmates of the inn were in bed, but the head waiter thought that a lady of a certain or uncertain age, the head chambermaid, might be induced to join the company to relieve it of the hoodoo.

The Duke himself hastened upstairs to the head chambermaid's room, knocked at the door, told who he was and explained the motive of his unceremonious visit.

Only too glad of the chance to get into such aristocratic society, the chambermaid dressed in haste and went to the supper room, where she was heartily applauded on her entrance. Following the supper came a cotillion, which was led by the Duke.

BABY M'LEAN, RICHEST CHILD IN THE WORLD

The "Hundred Million Dollar Baby" is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean and heir to the Thomas F. Walsh-John R. McLean riches.

KIDNAP FEAR ROBS RICHEST BABY OF TRIP

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Following recent threats of kidnapers, Vinson Walsh McLean, the "Hundred million dollar Baby," heir to the Thomas F. Walsh-John R. McLean millions, did not sail with his parents, Mr and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, on the Kronprinz Wilhelm when she cleared for Cherbourg.

One attempt has been made to kidnap the child since his birth, seven months ago, and his parents have received dozens of threats.

A special steel perambulator was constructed for the baby's safety during the European tour, but it was decided at the last minute that he would remain closely guarded at the Walsh estate, Bar Harbor home of the McLeans.

His maternal grandmother, widow of Thomas F. Walsh, is in charge of the child.

SALEM PUT AGAINST EXETER, ENGLAND, AND LOSES THE ARGUMENT

Salem, Massachusetts, has 38,000 people. Exeter, England, has 50,000.

The total debt of Exeter last year was $2,365,896; that of Salem was only $1,187,650.

But Exeter's budget called for only $957,566; while Salem's budget was $1,145,857.

In other words, Exeter, with a population of 12,000 more and a debt three times greater than that of Salem, spent $188,301 less than Salem did last year to run itself.

Question—Why does it cost so much more to run the American city over the English city?

This query is discussed, to the disadvantage of the American city, by Newton Marshall Hall in the September number of the World's Work. The writer says in part:

By NEWTON MARSHALL HALL.

It must be remembered that Exeter maintains expensive municipal enterprises for which there is no counterpart in Salem. On this account at least $200,000 should be deducted from the Exeter budget to make a fair comparison. This would leave $757,566.

On this basis of comparison it will be seen that the upkeep of the English city was only a little more than two-thirds of the sum which was spent by the smaller municipality. It should be said that about one-half of the debt of Exeter is invested in municipal enterprises which pay their way or return a profit, and are therefore no burden to the taxpayer.

Municipal Departments Compared.

A study of the municipal departments will be illuminating, as showing where the money goes in the two cities.

First, the department of public order. The police department of Exeter consists of fifty-five men, the total cost (including pensions) being $36,051. The police force in Salem consists of fifty-seven men, and it costs the city $50,173, without pensions. The cost per capita in Exeter was $0.72; in Salem, $1.34. The efficiency of the English constabulary is well known. The force is practically on a military basis. Free from political influence, it is able to devote its entire energy to the suppression of crime.

The fire brigade of Exeter has first-class apparatus, and ranks among the best in England, yet it cost the city last year only $5,945. They have a custom in England which would drive American fire insurance companies to despair. The insurances companies pay to the city a certain percentage of the cost of extinguishing every fire. Exeter received from this source last year $1,205, leaving the net cost of the fire brigade to the city $4,000. The permanent force consists of three men—for the protection of a wealthy city of 50,000 people! There are twenty-five call-boys in addition. The fire loss was $4,287.

The Salem department employs a permanent force of twenty-one men, with eighty men on call, and eleven substitutes. The department cost the city last year $39,552, and the losses by fire were $21,503. The per capita loss in Exeter was $.08½; in Salem it was $0.56½, which is very low for the United States. The loss for the whole country being $2.51 per capita. The cost of the department in Exeter was $0.09; in Salem, $1.04 per capita.

The care of streets and sewers forms an interesting basis of comparison between the two cities. Exeter has fifty-three miles of well-paved streets. It is perhaps needless to say that the science of road building is much further advanced in England than in this country, and that the streets of the average city are in a far better condition than those of our own cities. Exeter has a complete and adequate system of sixty-one miles of sewers. Salem has a greater street mileage, eighty-one miles, in a condition much inferior to that of Exeter. It has only forty miles of sewers, with much important work under construction. The street and sewer department of Salem spent last year $61,185, while the sewer commission spent $94,437 more in construction, a total of $155,603. The street and sewer department of Exeter spent, for all purposes, $48,259.

In the management of its water department the American city makes a brilliant showing. This department spent $40,040 for maintenance. Its gross receipts were $102,113, leaving a surplus of $62,085. The city of Exeter spent for the maintenance of its water department $32,474. Its gross income was $83,170. It paid for interest and sinking fund charges $41,017, a total of $73,491, leaving a net profit of $9,638.

When we come to the lighting of the two cities we find a very different story. Exeter owns its electric plant, which not only furnishes light to the city, but sells current to the municipal tramway and to private consumers. The net cost of lighting to the city, in comparison with the former private gas plant rates, was $17,500. The city of Salem pays a total of $48,593.

Exeter Owns Plants.

The city of Exeter owns and operates its electric tramline. The net revenue was $77,889. The net profit was $4. The fare is two cents a mile.

In addition to these important municipal enterprises, the city of Exeter maintains a canal and a tug-boat, an asylum for the insane, a sanatorium, a cattle-market, a slaughter-house, and public baths and wash-houses. Some of these enterprises show a small loss and some a small profit. The city also owns forty-nine working men's houses which it rents for a net sum of $1.20 a week each. This enterprise showed a deficit of $158 last year, but other business and lands owned by the city returned a profit of $12,732.

Exeter is in no respect behind our American cities in enterprise and public spirit. It manages its municipal housekeeping for about two-thirds the amount expended by a much smaller American city. What is the reason? Is it true that wages are lower and supplies cheaper, but this fact does not account for the large margin of difference. There are certain other reasons which do not appear upon the surface, and which apply not only to Exeter and Salem, but in general to municipal government in England and America.

GIVES HORSES TO COACHMAN IN WILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—In the will of Mrs. Sarah E. Pearsall, who died here on July 24, she leaves all her horses, carriages and equipment to her coachman, Cornelius Lenanhan, with the proviso that if he is unwilling to accept the horses they shall be put to death by chloroform. She also bequeaths to Lenanhan $6,000 outright.

MINING COMPANY HAS $6 IN BANK

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—William K. De Victor, the Philadelphia investigator, who went to Kansas City to investigate the Sonora Chief Mining Company, completed a report, in which he shows that at the last auditing of the books, March 31, 1909, the company had $6.14 in bank in Kansas City, and in the Mexico office $28.90, in Mexican currency.

CENSUS SHOWS BOSTON A CITY OF 630,000

There are about 630,000 persons in the city of Boston. This is the unofficial estimate made by Director of the Census Durand. To be exact, Mr. Durand's deductions, based on sporting writers would express it, "on past performances," indicate that Boston has gained 11 per cent. and that there are 629,868 persons of every race, color and creed in the city proper.

Mr. Durand, when he gave out this estimate in Washington, said: "This is a mathematical estimate of Boston's population. It was arrived at by taking the population of the city in 1905, according to the State census, and adding about 40,000 to it. This addition is made on the assumption that Boston's population has increased during the past five years as much as it did during the first five years following the twelfth census in 1900.

"The estimate takes into consideration births, deaths and other elements entering into the fluctuation of population."

The official figures of the Boston census will not be issued from the Bureau of Vital Statistics for two or three weeks. Director Durand says that the Massachusetts census, under Supervisor Gettemy, is being taken with more accuracy than is the case in many other States and for that reason, there has been some delay in arriving at the final tabulation of Boston's figures.

By the official figures now given out, New York is shown to have grown by twice the total population of Boston during the last decade. Since 1900 the population of the metropolis has increased by 1,329,681, or 38 per cent. This makes Gotham the second biggest city in the world. There are but 164,649 less people in New York than the combined population of all the cities of the country having more than 200,000, the population of which has already been announced.

OPERATION SAVES MAN IN AMBULANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A quick operation in an ambulance on the way to the Eastern district hospital in Williamsburg saved the life of Thomas O'Hare, a laborer of No. 260 India street. O'Hare was suffering from a severe cold and drank some medicine to relieve it. The drink choked him, and he was slowly suffocating when his wife called for help. O'Hare was placed in the ambulance and Dr. Cohen made an incision one and one-half inches long in O'Hare's throat to relieve the obstruction. Then he inserted a silver tube and stopped the flow of blood. At the hospital the operation was finished.

HOW BIG IS BOSTON?

$50 GIVEN FOR BEST ESTIMATES

Everybody in Boston is wondering just how big we are. The fact will be disclosed soon by the census enumerators. To stimulate the efforts of those who have given the subject thought, the BOSTON AMERICAN will give $50 in cash to those who make the nearest estimates to the real population of Boston as shown by the official figures.

In 1905 the population was 595,083. That showed a growth of 11 per cent. since the census of 1900. Figuring at the same percentage of gain since 1905, Census Director Durand of Washington has estimated that Boston now has 629,868 people.

But, remember, this is only an estimate, and the official figures may change the result. Get to work, figure it out yourself and incidentally win part of the AMERICAN'S prize money. Men, women and children may compete. Prizes will be awarded as follows:

Twenty-five dollars for the first best estimate.

Ten dollars for the second best estimate.

Five dollars for the third best estimate.

One dollar each for the next ten best estimates.

Get busy at once, as the official figures may come out at any time now. Address your estimate to CENSUS CONTEST EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, P. O. Box 227, Boston.

SYRIAN GIRL QUITS SANDFORD COLONY

YARMOUTH, Sept. 2.—Miss Sarah Joseph, the Boston girl who became a member of the Holy Ghost and Us Society and was among the followers of its head wrecked on Big Mud Island, is being taken back to Boston by her brother, Whappy Joseph.

Sarah, a Syrian girl, is the only convert the Rev. Frank Sandford made on his cruise to the Holy Land. While an alien in this country, her brother has declared he will give her a home in Boston.

TWO TRAINING FOR BOSTON LIGHT SWIM

Thomas Good and Charles McMahon, Randolph swimmers, are training daily at York and will attempt the Boston Light swim some time later in the month. Good recently went over the course in a motor boat and, like many others before making their attempt, doesn't see why it should be such a difficult swim.

CHINESE THEATRE IS NOW A CHURCH

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—After a quarter of a century as a playhouse, the Chinese theatre, Nos. 5 and 7 Doyer street, has become a place of religious worship, passing into the hands of The Rescue Society. The society for years had a place at Nos. 15 and 17 Doyer street. It was burned out and about the same time the lease expired and the proprietor of the Chinese theatre leased the place for business purposes.

CLEVELAND CARFARE MAY BE RAISED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—The Cleveland three-cent carfare is in danger. The Cleveland Railroad Company announced that it would discharge 200 men in the track department. Large deficits are given as reasons for the move. Three-cent fare is assured until December 1, but if the present surplus then proves inadequate the rate will be increased to four cents.

HAD PSORIASIS FOR TEN YEARS

Itching and Burning Terrible. Appearance Worse. Had Specialists and X-Ray, with Some Success, Others without Relief. Used Cuticura. In 4 Days Relieved. Inside of 2 Weeks Cured.

"I had been suffering with psoriasis for a period of ten years. It would disappear occasionally for a year or so and then return in worse form than before. The last attack came on a little over a year ago, and by early summer had covered me all over. The itching and burning were terrible, and my appearance was worse. I had tried different specialists and had had the X-rays used on me, sometimes with some success and at others without relief. In the early fall of 1909 I was induced to try the Cuticura treatment, by a party who had heard of a remarkable cure it had made, and I confess that I started in not only without faith, but with much prejudice against the medicine. In four days I was relieved of the inconvenience, and inside of two weeks cured, except for a slight discoloration of the skin, which wore off in a few weeks. I subsequently saw my friend Mr. who had the same trouble. When he saw the wonderful effect of Cuticura upon me, he at once started the entire treatment and was well in about ten days. I beg to thank you for the relief you have given me, and if any one wants my testimony as to the merit of Cuticura for that trouble and will send me a stamped envelope with their address on it, I will be glad to send them a recommendation under my own signature. Harry G. Martin, 1003 Colvert Bldg., Baltimore, Md., Mar. 1, 1910."

LUMBAGO FOLLOWS THE GRIP

Patient Suffered for Three Years With Pains in the Back.

When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Were Tried the Pains Left Gradually and Before Long She Was Entirely Cured.

Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have been so successful in the treatment of various forms of rheumatism, have cured striking cases of this trouble.

Mrs. Louisa Lockard, of 1055 W. Main street, Madison, Ind., who was cured by this treatment, says:

"After a severe attack of the grip I was left with lumbago and suffered with it for three years. I had sharp, shooting pains through my right side and arm and at times could not lift my arm. I was subject to these pains every winter for three years and then the pains went to my back and I could not move nor bear to have anything touch me. I became so bad that I was confined to my bed a great deal and was almost helpless for two weeks. My stomach was also in bad condition and I was very nervous.

"I was under the care of local doctors and for a time they helped me but each attack would be worse than the one before. The doctors finally said I had lumbago and that my system was full of uric acid. Through the advice of a friend I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes helped me. The pains gradually left me and I could get around again. My stomach was better and I could sleep well without having any nervous spells. It wasn't long before I was entirely cured.

If you are interested in the remedy that cured Mrs. Lockard, write today for a copy of the new edition of our book on "Diseases of the Blood." It contains information that may save you money and suffering.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

WORLD'S GREATEST AVIATORS HERE FOR RECORD MEET AT SQUANTUM

WILBUR WRIGHT SAYS FIELD IS THE BEST HE HAS SEEN YET.

scheduled to begin the events. We plan to have something in the air all the time. We also intend to have some flight in every event for the opening day. Flying will be maintained till sunset or as long as the aviators wish.

"Amateurs will have the field from 6 a. m. to 2 p. m. Then the field will be reserved for the professionals. Of course, if no professional is using the field at any certain hour in the afternoon, then an amateur may try. But the amateurs may not interfere with the professionals after 2 o'clock.

"Everything is ready. We think that the meet will be highly successful in every way."

James Means, the wealthy retired scientist of Beacon street, came to the field to-day. He is a friend of Wilbur and Orville Wright. He found Wilbur Wright at the Wright camp. Cordial greetings were exchanged. Mr. Means saw Mr. Gilddon a little later and congratulated him heartily on the enterprise shown by the Harvard Aeronautical Society in planning and carrying out the meet.

Missing Aeroplanes Found.

The missing aeroplanes of Claude Grahame-White and A. V. Roe, the two English aviators, which had not been heard from since they were lightered from the Cymric at the White Star docks, Charlestown, yesterday afternoon, arrived at the field to-day. They were all right.

Considerable anxiety had been felt for the aeroplanes and for J. V. Martin, manager of the meet, who had volunteered to see that the machines and lighter were safely transported across the harbor to Squantum. It was learned that Martin started out to tow the aeroplanes to Squantum with a power boat. He was warned by seafaring men and by the owners of the lighter that his power boat would not be adequate when they struck the outer harbor wind and currents. But Martin said he had a pilot's license. He started on his way.

Meanwhile Grahame-White and Roe wondered to-day where Martin and the valuable aeroplanes were. Late in the morning the lighter, machines and Martin came ashore at the field, all safe. Explanation was made that they had been delayed by low tide. The machines were brought ashore and hurried to the British sections in the west hangar.

Likes Franklin Field.

Early to-day, when Charles J. Glidden, Clifford B. Harmon, A. V. Roe and Grahame-White were motoring from the Touraine to the field, they passed Franklin Field. Grahame-White noticed the big, open space, and asked Mr. Glidden why that had not been selected as an aviation field instead of the Squantum site.

The wind and atmosphere were first considerations to the aviators. The air was good, but a stiff southwest wind was blowing across the field, too slow for the monbirds to buck against just then.

Of the twenty-two aviators entered for the meet, upsoing to-morrow, ten are already on the field with twelve of the twenty-three machines which are to appear. The rest are expected before night.

Charlie Taft, son of the President, was a visitor at the aviation field. He says he will make a flight during the meet. He father will let him.

Aviator Clifford B. Harmon, king of the amateur "men birds," was one of the first men on the field to-day, arriving at the grounds shortly before 8 o'clock. Mr. Harmon at once proceeded to the east hangar, where his Farman biplane was in position. After making a thorough inspection of the machine, to see that all the parts were in good working order, Harmon prepared to make his first flight on the field.

Wilbur Wright on Hand.

His five mechanicians were on hand, to give the final touches to the machine, which was in entire readiness, for the flight. Everything had been tuned up, and the big Gnome engine worked to the aviator's entire satisfaction. Harmon chatted pleasantly with the group of newspaper men and photographers that surrounded him as he came out of the hangar and mounted his seat.

"This is just what I have been looking forward to," he said; "now for it."

His biplane was in splek and span condition, and its showing was a revelation to the day, which proved the most successful yet seen on the field. To-day was the last of the tuning up days preparatory to the beginning of the big Harvard-Boston Aero meet to-morrow. It was notable throughout, owing to the presence of the leading aviators of the world on the ground.

Charles Francis Willard's Curtiss biplane was in practically perfect shape this morning. It was expected that Willard would make a flight at any moment, as he has the refusal of the field for the use of his machine.

Another event to fill out the excellent program for to-day was the flight of Cromwell Dixon's dirigible, the first since it has been here. Dixon, who is but eighteen years old, and who is known as the youngest aeronaut in the world, announced that he would fly all unattended, making the flight to the State House this afternoon. He will carry invitations from the committee to Governor Draper and Mayor Fitzgerald.

The English aviators, Grahame-White and Roe, had an interesting conversation and turn about the field with Aviator Harmon, with MacDonald, they joined in the rounds of the hangars, inspecting the various machines. The visiting experts seemed greatly interested in the lines of work in which the American aeroplanes specialized.

At one time they were looking over the Model C biplane, brought down from Marblehead by W. Starling Burgess. In addition to its most novel feature, the new "gate" control, the biplane is somewhat unusual, inasmuch as it is without wheels in the chassis.

Skids New to Grahame-White.

Aviator White's eye was at once caught by the absence of rollers.

"Why, where are your wheels?" he asked Burgess.

"I don't have wheels on this machine, only skids," was the reply.

"Skids? And how do you get off the ground?" asked White.

"Fly, easy," said Burgess. "Simply start the motor and the skids slide along on the grass. The machine will lift right up. But it would not do so on rough or gravelly ground."

"I can hardly believe that," said White, "My, that's wonderful. Say, but I have learned a lot of new things the short time I have been in America. That skid idea is a new one on me, eh, Roe?"

"Yes, I will have learned it all when you get ready to leave America," said Harmon, with a smile.

"No, not all, I guess, but a lot more than we knew before," came back from the Britisher.

Interested in "Gate" Control.

The "gate" control, an invention of Burgess, attracted the particular attention of the Englishmen. By using this, the aviator from his seat easily controls both the fore and aft lifting planes, and the lateral stability planes. The "gate" may be moved with either the right or the left arm of the aviator.

The Model C Burgess Company & Curtis type is equipped with a new 50-horsepower motor, just received from Paris

AIRSHIPS COMMON AS AUTOS IN 2 YEARS

I predict that within two years flying machines will be passing between here and Boston and causing no more comment than a trip by automobile does to-day. It was only a few years ago that a trip by auto from Boston to Manchester was considered a great feat.—Gardner G. Hubbard, Boston banker, in interview at Manchester.

The Model C machine was brought from Marblehead aboard a tug. Off Squantum the biplane was unloaded onto a flatboat. Thence it was carried to the shore. Workmen skidded it over the marsh, in the rain, and amid the greatest difficulties for more than three-quarters of a mile. Finally it was placed in position in the west hangar, next to the model B biplane.

Burgess invited the English aviators to call on him at Marblehead and go through his plant there.

The excellence of the Farman type was pointed out by the British sky pilots, when they were inspecting Harmon's biplane.

"I don't think any of the machines can touch it in its ability to hit the ground and take the shock with such perfect ease."

While was asked if he preferred his Bleriot monoplane or his Farman biplane, both of which he brought over with him.

"If you push me for an answer, I think I shall have to answer in favor of the Farman," he replied.

Roe will fly his self-designed triplane, or "three decker."

"Best Field," Says Wright.

Wilbur Wright seemed delighted with the field. He looked it over and pronounced it the best that his "boys" had been on this season. That is saying a great deal for the field, but it is only in line with what other aviators have declared, that Harvard Aviation field is superb in every way for easy work.

L. A. Blomquist of Hammondsport, N. Y., one of Glenn H. Curtiss's lieutenants, was one with the early birds. He rapidly put the Curtiss machine together. That will be used by Curtiss during the big meet. Curtiss will arrive in Boston tomorrow.

22 Birdmen Entered.

When the entries for the Harvard-Boston aviation meet closed, no less than 22 of the most famous professional and amateur flyers of the world had signified their intention of competing for the numerous prizes offered. With the exception of the French bird-men, the list includes the best known aviators of the world. Seventeen different machines will be shown, besides the man-kites and a dirigible.

The complete list of aviators and machines with the letters assigned to them is as follows:

AVIATORS.

A—Walter Brookins, Wright biplane.
B—Ralph Johnstone, Wright biplane.
C—Hugh Robinson, Curtiss biplane.

DIRIGIBLES.

Cromwell Dixon.

Curtiss' Last Flight.

Among the last entries received were those from Augustus Post and Stanley Yale Beach of New York. Post flies a Curtiss biplane and is a close rival of Curtiss' B. Harmon for amateur honors. Beach will use a Bleriot, with a gyroscope for automatic stability, for the use for the first time that this principle has been applied to a flying machine. He will also be watched with great interest, not only by the spectators, but by the other aviators in the world.

A new device has been adopted for informing the spectators as to what aviators are flying, what machines they are using, in which contest they are competing and under what flag they fly. The device used is a Buckley automatic signal with a nontangled attachment that prevents flags, lanterns and flashes from winding about the halliards and becoming entangled or torn on the poles. It also permits the use of three or four sets of signals to be hoisted or lowered independently of each other. The signals can be easily followed by referring to the key on the official program.

STEEL AIRSHIP WILL BE VEHICLE OF THE FUTURE

Grahame-White, the leading aviator of England, who has travelled over 700 miles in the air during the past year, and who is here for the aviation meet, believes that when the development of air navigation reaches its full power, people will travel in steel ships through the air. He says:

"Some day we will look back on the men of to-day who are taking such big chances with their life in the present day aeroplanes and say what fools they were.

"Here is one little instance of how the thing is working itself along: Shortly before I came here I took my Farman out in a forty-mile wind and fought it successfully. Six months ago, I would have regarded such an attempt to fly as most dangerous and foolhardy.

O'CONNOR RALLIES TONIGHT

Patrick H. O'Connor of South Boston, candidate for State Senator will hold two rallies to-night. The first will be at the corner of Bloe Hill avenue and Dove street, Dorchester, at 8 o'clock. The second will be held in Andrew Square, South Boston at 9.

KEENAN NOT GUILTY.

Judge Bernard of the Brighton district court to-day found not guilty and discharged John Keenan of Brighton, who was charged with violating the laws relative to the handling of milk at the stock yards.

CLIFFORD B. HARMON

AIRSHIP NO MENACE TO BATTLESHIPS

As far as danger to the fleet from daylight attacks of airships, I hardly believe it is of any moment. The greatest altitude the airship has yet attained is a mile, and all the tests of dropping so-called bombs on the marked out diagram representing a battleship have been from heights much less than that. I hardly believe an airship could, under wartime conditions, reach a position that would enable her to be a menace to the navy.

It is true the airship travels at a high rate of speed, but it is inconceivable, at least to me, that one could escape the rain of projectiles of large and small calibre that would be directed against it.

At night of course the airship would have a great advantage, as it would be difficult to discover in the high heavens.—Rear Admiral Bowles, president of Pope River Shipbuilding Company.

PROTEST PAINTERS ON STATE HOUSE

Alleging that non-union and non-citizen workmen were engaged as painters at the State House, Painters' Union, No. 11, through the Building Trades department of the Boston Central Labor Union, to-day entered a vigorous protest against the employment of these workmen. As a result, the board of governors of the B. C. L. U. to-day met and instructed Business Agent Arthur M. Huddell, of the Building Trades' Union, to send a letter of protest to the sergeant-at-arms at the State House.

TAFT TO MAKE ST. PAUL TRIP

BEVERLY, Sept. 2.—President Taft will leave here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 for St. Paul, Minn., where he will address the Conservation Congress. He will be accompanied by his military aide, Capt. Butt, and Secretary Norton. The President will motor to Boston, leaving the South Station at 4:50. The secret service and newspaper men will also go along. On Wednesday, September 7, the President will start for home. This forenoon the President played a game of golf at the Myopia Golf Club, Hamilton, with John Hays Hammond and Capt. Butt.

ADAMS GOES WEST.

Walter E. Adams, press representative of the Boston & Albany, formerly a prominent newspaper man of Boston, has left for the West for a month's vacation. Admiral Bowles Sees Little Peril to Warships from Aeroplanes.

Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles believes there is but slight cause to fear that airships will be a menace to battleships in time of war time. Discussing the feature of the coming aviation meet in which the birdmen will try, while flying at speed, to drop bombs upon a space outlined in the shape of a battleship, he said:

"I can conceive of a situation under which the airship, navigated by such a man as directs a submarine, a man whose purpose is placed far beyond the value of his own life, might prove a very serious menace to ships of the navy. That would be when a fleet is anchored in a roadstead and the lights would point out their location to an aviator many thousands of feet in the air.

"As for any danger to the fleet from daylight attacks of the airships, I hardly believe it is of any moment. The greatest altitude the airship has yet attained is about a mile, and all the tests of dropping so-called bombs on a marked out diagram representing a battleship have been from heights much less than that. I hardly believe an airship could, under wartime conditions, reach a position that would enable her to be a menace to the navy.

"It is true that the airship travels at a high rate of speed, but it is inconceivable, at least to me, that one could escape the rain of projectiles of small and large calibre that would be directed against it.

"At night of course the airship would have a great advantage, as it would be difficult to discover in the high heavens."

EXTRA STREET CARS TO BE RUN FOR THE BIG FLYING MEET

The old Colony Street Railway Company will do everything possible to handle trolley traffic from Atlantic station to the aviation field. An extra, high-power feed wire will be installed along the single track line. It is planned, on the single track, and one curnout, to run twenty cars, with a similar seven-car curnout. The company plans to have cars at all trains. But the question of the transportation problem are many. It was impossible for the company to say any extra track for this meet. The present street is not wide enough. Nor could a location be granted in time.

ESTIMATES OF THE COTTON CROP

NEW YORK, Sept. 2. The New York cotton exchange to-day announced its estimates of the commercial cotton crop of the year ended September 1, 1910 as follows: Alabama, 1,067,211 bales; Arkansas, 219,081; Florida, 63,007; Georgia, 1,001,722; Louisiana, 274,808; Mississippi, 1,-057,871; North Carolina, 1,000,000; South Carolina, 166,714; Oklahoma, 375,100; Tennessee, 254,124; Texas, 2,067,174; Virginia, 63,923. Total, 10,543,002 bales.

First Flights Planned By Birdmen for To-day

Cromwell Dixon, eighteen-year-old aviator, leaves Aviation Field at 2 p. m. flies to State House, circles dome, lands on Common and delivers invitation to Governor Draper to attend Harvard aviation meet which opens at Squantum to-morrow.

Clifford B. Harmon flies around two-mile course at Aviation Field.

Horace F. Kearny and William M. Hilliard test machines by flights at Aviation Field.

THROWS STONE; KILLS BANDIT

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 2.—In a desperate attempt to hold up westbound Colorado Midland train No. 3 four miles west of Divide early to-day, an unknown bandit was instantly killed by a large stone thrown by Engineer Frank Stewart after he had shot the engineer in the leg.

Sterling and Charles Martin, two young men who were near the scene of the holdup, are held for investigation into the possible complicity in the robbery. Sterling Martin was slightly wounded in the head by a bullet.

WOULD WITHDRAW CHOATE CHARGES

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 2.—George W. Chamlee, who presented a petition at a meeting of the American Bar Association in this city Wednesday, said to contain charges against Joseph H. Choate of New York, has asked leave to withdraw the petition. The action followed the reading of resolutions adopted by the Chattanooga Bar Association expressing regret at the alleged attack on Mr. Choate by a member of the local association.

BROWNE WITNESS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—An indictment against George H. Glee, a witness in the Lee O'Neil Browne bribery case, charging perjury, was returned here today. Glee's bond was placed at $10,000. This is the second perjury indictment.

SALEM STRIKE PEACE NEAR

SALEM, Sept. 2.—Although a complete settlement of the strike of the 750 shoe factory employees here has not been reached, the prospects of an agreement being arrived at to-day or to-morrow are good.

Business Agents Meagher of the cutters and Wibblen, representing the United Shoe Workers of America, have secured promises from several of the manufacturers that the agreement which the business agent presented would be signed by the several firms, provided the strikers returned to work before the signatures are affixed.

The firms that are still holding off will, it is believed, soon come to an agreement with the strikers also. The only article of the new agreement made public as yet is a clause providing for arbitration of future difficulties by a board of five, two from each side and the question lingered and the fifth a disinterested person.

LEGAL BATTLE ON THE PLANT CASE

The difficulties between the United Shoe Machinery Co. and the Thomas G. Plant Co., and Thomas G. Plant, individually, are before Judge Bugg of the Supreme Judicial Court to-day, on a motion of the plaintiff to strike from the files the pleas of the defendants. The merits of the controversy were not under consideration, and it was a legal battle between counsel on a question of practice which it is claimed is without precedent in the courts of this Commonwealth. The argument for the show cause order was made by Walter H. Parr, and for the Plant Company by Sherman L. Whipple. Judge Bugg will further consider the matter before giving a decision.

BIG CLAMBAKE FOR WATERWAY ASSOCIATION

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 2.—Planning a campaign to make effective their demand that the Federal Government construct a chain of inland deep waterways connecting New England with the South, the delegates to the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association to-day resumed their convention in the Opera House.

The third day's session of the convention was the most enthusiastic held so far. The delegates were all impressed with the importance of the great project they were fostering. The association declares itself to be the mouthpiece of 30,000,000 American citizens on the Atlantic coast.

Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania was re-elected president of the association and Addison B. Burke of Philadelphia was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

This afternoon the delegates all took automobiles and trolley cars for Vanity Fair on Narragansett Bay where they enjoyed a magnificent clambake. The singing "Richmond, 1911," carried the day and the convention next year is to be held at the capital of Virginia.

NEWTON Y. M. C. A. CORNERSTONE LAID

Despite the weather the cornerstone of the new Young Men's Christian Association Building, at Church and Belvidere streets, Newton Centre, was laid by Congressman Weeks. Prayer was offered by the Rev. George S. Butters of the Methodist Church. The speakers were Mayor Hagerald of Newton, Allen B. Emery, president of the Young Men's Christian Association; A. M. Basford, past president of the organization, and several others. Services followed at the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

ACTRESS SUED FOR A DIVORCE GOES "BROKE"

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Truly Shattuck, an actress, now playing in vaudeville, has been sued for divorce and simultaneously she has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Her husband is Stephen A. Douglas. Papers in his suit were filed in Detroit through his attorneys, Eugene Mystersky and James Martha. Miss Shattuck's maiden name was Clarice Etrulla De Kalcastle.

Douglass says he and his wife were married in 1900, and lived happily for several years. Finally troubles arose and multiplied until his wife left him in 1908. She has never returned and he has not seen her since, though she has played in Detroit. Mr. Douglass says he was heartbroken when his wife left him, but now is anxious to be freed. Douglass is connected with the Detroit Journal, and he also is president of the Municipal Operation Company.

In her application to be adjudged a bankrupt Miss Shattuck places her liabilities at $2,706.40, unsecured by any assets save wearing apparel that is exempt under the law. Some of her debts date back to 1903 and cover all manner of articles, including jewelry and photographs.

FIND FARMER HUNG ON RAFTERS OF BARN

LITTLETON, Sept. 2.—Alarmed at his prolonged absence from home, neighbors of Henry H. Ramsdell made a search which resulted in the finding of his body hanging from a rafter in his barn. Mr. Ramsdell, who was a well-to-do farmer, went to Lowell a few days ago and returned home without being seen by anyone. It is supposed that his act was caused by brooding over the death of his wife and of all his near relatives.

TRULY SHATTUCK, WHOSE HUSBAND SEEKS HIS FREEDOM

CURB TRUSTS BY TAX LAW IS TAFT IDEA

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

BEVERLY, Sept. 2.—President Taft regards the corporation tax as perhaps the greatest achievement so far of his administration.

In the matter of sane and effective regulation it affords a medium in the estimation of the President, that will go further in solving the problem of the corporations than any device yet suggested.

The final returns from the first imposition of the tax are now in. Commenting on the results, the President expressed his astonishment at the remarkable fact that of the entire amount levied the deficits in payments amounts to only $200,000. In round numbers, the treasury is $27,000,000 richer as a result of the tax.

Serves Double Purpose.

In addition, and what, in the estimation of the President, is incomparably more important, the Government now has at hand, for the first time, the necessary machinery for ascertaining the entire truth with regard to the hitherto secret workings of the great industrials concerned. This is the feature of the corporation tax law that appeals most to the President. As a revenue producer, of course, it is not to be despised. Considered wholly as a revenue measure, it has served the purpose of practically wiping out the treasury deficit. Had the deficit been half again as large the addition of one per cent. to the tax would have wiped it out completely.

In time of peace the tax may be maintained at a purely nominal rate, but should danger threaten the nation it would be one of the easiest and most practical resources to which Congress could turn, and the machinery for its use is always ready to hand.

The revenue feature, however, is one of the least of the advantages of the corporation tax law. It is through the revenue feature, working toward effective control of the corporations that the President has often the opening wedge into the corporation problem. Under the act all corporations with a net income of more than $5,000 are compelled to furnish to the government, through a sworn statement, all the facts necessary to enable the collector of internal revenue to levy the 2 per cent. tax provided by the law.

Books Always Kept Open.

This throws the books of the corporations open to government inspection. It shows the amount of profits, the extent of the corporation's operations, its affiliations and its methods of doing business. If an unlawful combination has been established the books of the corporation will show it. If a corporation is operating in restraint of trade the administration has the means at hand to ascertain the facts. All the returns made by responsible corporation officials are sworn to, and if a subsequent examination of the books demonstrates that the corporation official sworn falsely he goes to jail.

Up to date the corporation tax is the only form of income tax that the nation has been able to get. Even this law has been carried to the Supreme Court, but it was drafted by some of the best lawyers in the country, under the supervision of the President himself, with a close eye always on the anti-income tax decisions of the Supreme Court, and within the past few days the President has expressed himself as confident that the court will uphold the law.

The doubt as to this law is one of the stumbling blocks in the way of the advancement the President is planning against unlawful corporations in general. With a decision upholding the constitutionality of the tax, and with the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases decided in favor of the Government—and it can be said authoritatively that the President believes the contentions of the Government will be upheld in both of these cases—Mr. Taft will order the Attorney-General to begin operations at once all along the line to bring the lawless corporations into subjection.

President's Own Invention.

Wherefore, Mr. Taft feels that the corporation tax is the one piece of constructive legislation passed since the awakening of the nation to the danger of industrial combination that furnishes the machinery necessary to effectively curb the trusts. Double-barreled in the respect that it furnishes large revenue, which it provides for a legal searchlight into the methods of the corporation, it points the way, and with a decision from the Supreme Court that can clear the Sherman anti-trust law it will be possible for Mr. Taft to move ahead toward the goal which he has set for himself.

The President is engaged now in framing the regulations under which publicity shall be insured for the returns made by the corporations under the law. These will be issued shortly after his return to Washington.

One significant feature of this corporation tax little commented on is that with all the talk abroad about "clinching" the lawless corporations, here is one policy of the President's own invention that promises to be more effective in its results than any of the other policies preached before or since the return from Africa.

It took form in the President's mind while that topic was involved in the income tax struggle during the special session of Congress, and was accepted by regular and insurgent alike as an effective compromise.

It stands out as one of the distinct achievements of an administration that has had to battle hard for everything that it has won. The President feels that even if the tariff law is not without its defects, it was a good thing to put on the statute books if for no other reason than that the much criticised law contained the very important provision for the corporation tax.

DEMOCRATS SAY THEY'LL SWEEP NEW ENGLAND

Northern New England is boiling over with political excitement in these Autumn days. There are big battles going on in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, and in all three States the Democrats are making an aggressive fight. It will look like a Republican victory in Vermont, with the usual majority of that party wiped out and the election of the State ticket by a narrow margin.

In New Hampshire now everything depends upon the result of the primaries to be held on Tuesday, when the people by direct vote will nominate all candidates for State offices and for Congress. There is no contest over the Democratic nomination. New Hampshire Democrats are united in support of Clarence E. Carr of Andover. The Republicans are having a factional fight which is stirring the State.

Insurgents for Bass.

The insurgents, or as they call themselves, the "Progressive" Republicans, are backing Senator Robert P. Bass of Peterboro for their party nomination. His opponent is former Senator Jacob Harris Gallinger of Keene, who is the candidate of the old organization which has always been accused of being the "railroad machine." How the primary campaign will result only the balloting can determine. Bass seems to be gaining ground fast. If he wins it will give insurgency more courage everywhere. All over the country political leaders are watching New Hampshire.

Congressman Foss of Massachusetts is helping Democrats win by the G. O. P. in Vermont. The Republicans have carried Vermont without a break for generations. The idea of a Democrat being elected Governor there is regarded as preposterous, but the Democracy is promising that it will win this year. The election is only four days off.

Charges Against Mead.

At a rally in Burlington at which Foss, H. Brown of Rutland, a member of the Democratic National Committee, and Charles D. Watson, Democratic candidate for Governor, were the speakers, Dr. J. A. Mead, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, was openly accused of buying up delegates to the convention which named him for the highest office in the State.

Governor Fernald and Colonel Plaisted are handling the issues from opposing viewpoints without mincing words. It is understood that the national Republican organization is doing everything it can to hold Maine in its column, and that between now and election day all the resources of both State and national machines will be taxed as never before in a Maine fight.

BAY STATE SEAMAN DROWNS NEAR SHIP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—James B. Stanley, a seaman in the Navy, fell overboard from the battleship Rhode Island, Annapolis, Md., struck his head on a coal barge and was drowned. He was the son of Dr. J. S. Stanley of Brooksville, Maine.

GROWING SOME!

NEW YORK TO BEAT LONDON IN 25 YEARS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—New York city's population, which is now 4,766,883, will exceed that of London's in twenty-five years, making this the greatest city in the world, if the same percentage of increase is continued, according to the estimates of experts to-day. It is figured that on January 1, 1933, New York city's population will number 10,000,000, leaving London but 700,000 or 800,000 ahead. With a continuance of the present respective rate of increase, however, it will be only a few years afterwards that the population will reach 11,500,000, surpassing that of the English metropolis.

SHANLEY'S WILL MAKES STRANGE COMPLICATIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—James R. Shanley, who during the last four years of his life paid $40,000 a year alimony to another man's wife, added a complication difficulty to the troubled affairs of his kindred by providing to his will that his second wife shall be the guardian of his first wife's children.

The will of the noted contractor, who died last week, was filed in Stamford, Ct. It states the value of his personal estate as $2,000,000, but this will be largely increased upon the distribution of the great fortune of his father, Bernard Shanley.

Second Wife Guardian.

The testator directed that $5,000 a year should be expended for the support and education of his three children by his first wife, who is now Mrs. Clifford Buckman of Bell Haven road, Greenwich, Ct. The children are James Shanley, Jr., fourteen years of age; Julia O. Shanley, twelve, and Robert A. Shanley, seven.

The will also stipulates that after the estate of the testator's father has been distributed a fund of $1,000,000 shall be set aside out of the testators share to be administered in equal shares for the three children. Should any of them die during minority the principal is to become part of the residuary estate which is bequeathed outright on the second wife.

She is named as executrix and trustee of the will, and also as guardian of the three children of the first wife. The will directs that she be not required to give any security.

Forced to Pay Alimony.

Mr. Shanley lived with his first wife in a beautiful home on Riverside Drive. The sudden closing of their home in June, 1908, and their departure on different ways first revealed the fact that there were difficulties between them.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Shanley brought suit and won a decree as per the terms of the will. Her alimony was fixed at $40,000.

Before the end of the year Mr. Shanley was married to Mrs. Olga M. Springer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Materne of this city. She had been married in 1898 to Philip C. Springer, a wealthy speculator. In 1901 she had obtained a divorce from him. In February, 1907, the first Mrs. Shanley became the wife of Clifford Buckman, a Wall street broker of means. When it came time for the first alimony payment Shanley refused to give the $40,000 to his former wife on the ground that her present husband was capable of providing for her. She promptly sued and the court decided that the alimony must be paid, in spite of the wife's remarriage.

INSANITY DEFENCE IN MURDER TRIAL

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 2.—Insanity is to be the defence for Bertram G. Spencer, imprisoned in the Hampden County Jail charged with the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone of this city. The trial is set for the 19th. On Wednesday Spencer collapsed. His nervous breakdown was such at the time that it was feared the trial might have to be delayed. To-day Colonel Charles L. Young said the trial would proceed. Dr. J. W. Courtney, alienist of Boston has twice examined Spencer. Colonel Young says that he is convinced from conversations with the prisoner that Spencer does not know the difference between right and wrong.

WILL SEND LEPROSY SUFFERER TO CAMP

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A negress suffering from leprosy in an advanced stage is at Bellevue Hospital. The sufferer is forty-six years old and came to this country seven years ago from Jamaica. When she came to the hospital she brought her four-year-old son with her and said that she had been deserted by her husband. The woman will be sent to the lepers' camp on Blackwell's Island.

FAMOUS CHEMIST DIES OF OLD AGE

AMHERST, Sept. 2.—A brief illness from infirmities due to old age resulted in the death here of Dr. Charles Anthony Goessmann, professor emeritus of chemistry at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, honorary director of the State Agricultural Experiment Station and a leading authority on Agricultural chemistry.

START ON NEW HUNT FOR MAN IN DEATH CASE

SANFORD, Me., Sept. 2.—That Nicolas Capsalis, the Greek wanted in Somersworth, N. H., for murder, is in hiding in the woods two miles from this town is the belief of Policeman Charles E. Bennett and Frank Sherbourne. A man answering to the description of the much wanted Capsalis arrested Sherbourne on River street near the mills and asked which road he would take to go to Biddeford.

As soon as the man, believed to be Capsalis, started in the direction of the road to Biddeford Sherbourne notified Bennett and within half an hour after the man had left this town the policeman had secured a carriage and started out in pursuit.

For two miles along the road to Biddeford the men in the carriage could plainly make out the tracks of the man, but suddenly the tracks left the road and led toward the dense woods. As a heavy rain began falling officer Bennett decided to return to Sanford and get in communication with the police at Somersworth. Sherbourne is confident that the man who approached him on River street is Capsalis, and Bennett will organize a posse and search the woods.

CHURCH WORKERS PARADE IN RAIN

Although the weather was far from favorable, the parade in connection with the Evangelical Alliance meeting in the big tent at Warren avenue and Clarendon street, was a success. The procession passed the Clarendon Street Baptist, Union Congregational, Tremont Street Methodist, First United Presbyterian, Warren Avenue Baptist and First Presbyterian churches and the People's Temple, and then returned to the tent, where services were held.

NEW MUNICIPAL GYMNASIUM IS NEARLY DONE

The new Municipal Gymnasium in East Boston will probably be opened for public use on October 1. It is rapidly nearing completion. It is one of the latest city buildings the erection of which was authorized by Mayor Hibbard and the old City Council. It is being built on Paris street on the site of the East Boston Athletic Association building. The city took the latter for the first indoor municipal gymnasium in America. Mayor Josiah Quincy, the last Mayor of his name, was the first head of the Boston city government who took steps to have public gymnasia and many bath houses for the people in this city.

The new gymnasium is 100x140 feet and the main gymnasium floor is 70x110. This big hall is thirty feet high. Besides the gymnasium bath there is a public one for both men and women. There are two playrooms on the second floor, a wrestling and fencing room and a handball court. The architects are Newhall & Stevins, and they have planned a building where all the space is utilized. The gymnasium will be equipped with modern apparatus. The street front is built of tapestry brick and the roof is tiled in Spanish fashion. The city appropriated $75,000 for the building and its equipment. There will be a surplus of about $5,000, it is estimated.

BIG ALIEN GAIN FOR BAY STATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—During the ten-year period to 1910, 406,467 immigrant aliens, or 7.20 per cent. of the total number (8,202,388) admitted to the United States, were destined for Massachusetts, says the August bulletin of the Bureau of Statistics. The Italians, with 14,700 persons declaring their destination to be Massachusetts in 1908, numerically outclassed all other nationalities, but this number represented only 7.72 per cent. of the total number of Italians admitted to the United States during the year.

DORCHESTER BABY NEW CLAIMANT IN BEAUTY CONTEST

HELEN FRANCES MURRAY

GLAD TIDINGS FOR "DRYS" IN DIRECTORY

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—One of the six best sellers, the City Directory, is out again. The entertaining little volume contains two Lafts and one Year. The original Mr. Smith has 3,818 relatives this year. Prohibitionists may be glad there are only two Drinkers, one Boss, two Boozers and one Drinkwine. Mr. Pickle may be included, but Mr. Drinkwater balances the account. Looking closer we find thirty Beers, ten Schnapps and sixteen Seltzers. There are nine Batts.

2-YEAR-OLD CHILD BEAUTY AFTER HONORS

The youngest and tiniest aspirant for beauty honors has just presented herself. She is little Helen Frances Murray, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Murray of No. 4 Bellflower street, South Boston.

She is wonderfully beautiful, according to the ardent descriptions sent in and besides being beautiful and healthy is an exceptionally bright child with big blue eyes, already talks distinctly and dances with unusual ability.

Everyone who sees the child stops to admire her and declares that she is as beautiful as a doll.

Her parents declare that although Helen has the handicap of extreme youth, that they will enter her heartily against any contestant, regardless of age or requirements.

BRAYTON IMPROVING.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—The condition of General Charles R. Brayton, the blind Republican leader in Rhode Island, who fractured his hip last Monday, continues to improve, but it will be six or eight weeks before he is around again.

The close approach of Fall lends renewed energy to our determination to make a clean sweep of all remaining summer goods—hence this "Odd Lot Sale." With stock-taking over, many odd lots of merchandise have come to light, which must be sold. We insist upon showing none but the newest of fashions at the outset of a new season—naturally no mercy will be shown these few odds and ends that remain. There are not many in any one lot, but there are a great many different lots and you'll probably find just the thing you need for your outing on Labor Day, at a cut price

You don't take any chances with such goods, nor with anything else you buy here at any time. We give you ample guarantee of this with "Your money back if you want it." We just want to clear our stock of Summer goods—that's all. And below you will find prices that ought to do it.

Odd Lot Men's $15 Suits

About 200 in all—not many of any kind, nor a full range of sizes in any lot, in fact an odd lot of suits that must be gotten rid of—hence the price is cut down one-half. These suits come in various patterns of worsted, fancy stripes, mixtures or interwoven effects in single breasted coat styles of the latest fashions. If it's a bargain you're after, you get it in these $15 suits at $7.50—if your size is here.

Boys' $5.50 Suits For School

BANNER RACING CARD SCHEDULED FOR READVILLE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

DOVES TACKLE DODGERS IN A DOUBLE-HEADER

SIX GREAT TROTTERS AFTER $10,000 STAKE IN GRAND CIRCUIT

READVILLE RACE TRACK, Sept. 2—Because the track could not be put in condition for this afternoon, it was decided to postpone the races again and finish the meeting tomorrow.

This action was taken regretfully because it will necessitate many changes in the programme. But the Harvester will go against the crowd tomorrow.

The card to be raced Saturday will be as follows: The Massachusetts Stake for 2.14 trotters 2 in 3, $10,000, the Bunker Hill Stake for 2.05 pacers, 2 in 3, $3,000; the Norfolk Stake for 2.14 pacers, 2 in 3, $2,500; the 2.04 list for 2.04 trotters, the attempt of The Harvester 2.02, to lower his own world's record for a trotting stallion. The 2.16 trot and 2.16 pace are declared off.

The race between Hall Worthy, 2.06¾, the favorite, Dudie Archdale, 2.06¾, Billy Burke, 2.06¾, Wilbur, 2.06¾, Cardinal George 2.09¾, and Risa 2.13¾, will surely furnish a battle royal, and the Massachusetts 3-mentors should prove one of the best heats in all its glorious history.

These horses have had a remarkably matched campaign, and should provide some fine sport with the mark of Sadie Mac, 2.03¼, in the offing. For 1905, very closely shaded.

Hall Worthy, the favorite, has been a winner at Grand Rapids, finishing 1-2-3; 1-1-1 at Detroit, 2.06¾, 2.07¾, 2.07¾; at Kalamazoo he was 6-6-2-1-1; at Buffalo, 2.07¾, 2.08¾, 2.08¾, at Detroit he was 4-2-5 to Nancy Direct, 2.08¾, 2.07¾, at Buffalo to Dudie Archdale, 2.06¾, 2.07¾, 2.08¾, at New York he was 1-7-1 to 2.08, 2.06¾.

Dudie Looks Good.

Dudie Archdale (2.06¾), at Terre Haute was 3-1-1 in 2.11, 2.12¾, 2.14¾; at Grand Rapids 1-1-1 in 2.09¾, 2.08¾, 2.09¾; at Kalamazoo 2-1-1 in 2.07¾, 2.06¾, 2.08¾; at Detroit 1-1-1 to 2.09¾, 2.08¾, 2.08¾; at Cleveland 2-2-1 to 2.09¾, 2.08¾, at Buffalo 2-3-1-2 to Hall Worthy in 2.07¾, 2.07¾, 2.08¾; at New York 2-2 to Joan in 2.10¾, 2.09¾.

Billy Burke (2.06¾), was 1-1-1 at Terre Haute in 2.13¾, 2.12, 2.09¾; at Kalamazoo 1-1-1 in 2.07¾, 2.08¾, 2.06¾; at Cleveland 6-4-1 to Dudie Archdale in 2.06¾, 2.07, 2.06¾.

Wilbur (2.06¾) at Grand Rapids was 1-1-2-1 to Hall Worthy in 2.06¾, 2.09¾, 2.07¾, 2.10; at Kalamazoo 1-1-1 in 2.09¾, 2.06¾, 2.11¾; at Detroit 2-2-1 to Grattan Jr. in 2.08¾, 2.08¾, at Cleveland 3-2-10 Joan in 2.08¾, 2.08¾.

The above tables show how closely the great trotters are matched, and the wonderful race, with the chances in favor of the 5-year-old gelding Wilbur (2.13¾), and Alcidan by Alcyo (2.18¾). He was raced by Fred Shults of Pottsville, N. Y., and is now owned by C. W. Kavanaugh of Harrisburg, Va.

The Worcester Driving Club endeavors, weather and track permitting, to lower his own world's stallion trotting record. Ed Geers has the splendid aim of Walnut Hall the fine fertile farm, and the track is certainly as fast as the one at Fort View where he trained Arion, Lou and his chances are rosy for a merry battle with Arthur Pierce.

That seems surely destined to be one of the great pacing events of the present year is the Bunker Hill $3,000 stake for 2.05 pacers, of which are entered Ross K., Ina H. Kay, Arthur Wilkes, Ella Bellingham, Jessie W. Baron Whips, Ella Ambassador and Worcester Boy.

Ed Geers in Bunker Hill.

The race is expected to prove a stubborn fight between Ross K. (2.02¼), in the hands of Jack McMahon, and Ella H. Kay (2.02¼), driven by Ed Geers, and some very swell wagers have been made upon this race, Geers taking the chance of Ross K. against the field. It should be a whirlwind finish, and one of the best events of the year. Should the fastest pacers out, and the race will be one not soon to be forgotten.

Colonel H. the bay stallion by Combineer, is the favorite for the 2.16 trot, by the stepped in 2.07¼ record. Major J. and Maude Maid should be able to chase this fel-low home, but will very likely be beaten.

The Norfolk Stake for 2.14 class pacers, purse $2,500, has the following entries: The Alice 2.04, the unbeaten son of Chimes Direct, Hal Boy, Ann Arbor, Ernest, Brainbank Baughan, Jessie Patchen, Lakeside Hal, Evelyn W. and Maxie Direct finished in the money in the 2.14 class from lameness, and the only horses in the field that can make a race for the money is Brainbank Baughan, the bay son of Wilbur Baughan, in the stable of Walter Cox.

READVILLE TO BE FAIR GROUND

The two-minute race track at Readville and the surrounding property are to be converted into an immense fair grounds and which will be the scene of an annual Boston Fair, and unless all plans go awry, Boston will see the first exhibition next year, in connection with the Grand Circuit race.

This has been the predicted future of Readville for a long time past, and now it comes true in the plans of some of the preliminary plans.

An association has been organized, capitalized at $250,000, towards which Andrew J. Welch, the owner of the track, also contributes the entire racing plant, and which he lists at a value of $150,000, and the remaining $100,000 to be raised by the subscription of stock, divided into shares of the value of $100 each.

The location at Readville is admirable for a great New England Fair, to be held annually, and the solution of the racing problem, the one important factor which has seemed doubtful as regards the enterprise, is the happy one reached.

Mr. Welch was especially successful in the development of the Connecticut State Fair at Hartford, CT., when the future of the beautiful Charter Oak Park was in question some years ago, and the association, some time since, took over Mr. Welch's entire holdings. Last year upon Labor Day 71,000 passed through the gates at Charter Oak, to see The Harvester and Bob Douglass race, and the fair has been successful since its inception.

Horse and Speedway Notes

The programs of Labor Day races announced for the Grand Circuit and other clubs assure some fine holiday sport and much capital horses have been listed.

George A. Law of the Fellsway Club has sold his well-known chestnut pacer Venture to parties in White Plains, N. Y.

Kinsey Forshaw and James H. Brooks have sold the black matinee mare Baroness Hugenot (2.24¾) at private sale. She was formerly driven in the 2.20 matinees by Frank G. Hall of the Adams House.

The races at the Old English fair at Worcester, and which begin on Monday, will be the special pacing race between Abbeyl, Wilson (2.02½) and Gallagher (2.06¾), promise some excellent sport and seem assured of a large attendance.

Justin Edwards has the plans well under way for the races at the Framingham fair on September 29-30, and the two-mile steeplechase race, an event of over the hurdles and two races on the flat, are also offered in connection with an attractive list of trotting and pacing purses. Among the gentlemen riders who will take part are A. Henry Higginson, Harry W. Smith, Ralph Tuckerman, Charles Bird and John P. Boudinot.

E. J. Scanlon of the Metropolitan and Fellsway Driving Clubs has sold his well-known Matinee pacer, Max C., to parties in Haverhill.

James F. Smith, the popular New Bedford brewer, will start his trotter, Dan Dee, in the 2.16 trot at Readville, and this fellow, who has performed very creditably over the race grounds, should turn in an excellent performance.

President Fred C. Garmon of the Wollaston A. C. has plans well under way for the opening of the Fall series of races at Charles River Speedway and carded for September 20. He predicts the best series of races ever seen over the fast bit of straightaway turf.

The 2.25 trot carded at Hills Grove upon the closing day of the meeting next Monday, September 9, has been changed to a 2.24 class.

George A Nute of the Fellsway Driving Club has sold his matinee trotter, Miss Todd, to parties in Maine and received as part of the sale price an excellent brood mare.

The annual Athol Fair, with a good list of horse events, begins on Labor Day and will last two days. There is always plenty of good sport in the Worcester County hill town.

James F. Young, chairman of the racing committee of the Old Colony Driving Club, has the programs of races at the annual Weymouth Fair, September 16-17, well in hand. A 2.15, 2.18, 2.24 and 2.30 trot and pace are carded, together with a colt race and matinee event for trotters and pacers. Besides the purses for the fair, purses offered amount to $1,050. Entries close with Mr. Young at No. 50 Adams street, Quincy, Mass., September 6, at 11 p. m.

The races at Hill's Grove beginning on Labor Day promise an even better meeting than was enjoyed during August. The $500 stake for three-year-old trotters and the $1,000 stakes for the 2.19 and 2.22 class trotters are already arousing much interest.

In the 2.19 trotting stake are named Scientia, Belenda, Oakland Flobay, Sisters-in-Law, Maquon, Helen Turner, McQuillin, Jean S., Alice Grover, Velocity, Wildfire, Annie Kohl, Baron Aberdeen, Alice Victor, Prince Lenny, Westwood, Johnny Medium, Black Bet, Frenzel, Russell C. and Doreen.

For the 2.22 trotting stake are named Lecco Maid, Major Dillard, Emperor Wilkes, Bridge Worthy, Oakland Flobay, Creighton, The Saxon, McQuillin, Belvasla, May Queen, Baden, Scientia, Frenzel, Alice Gregor, Richard Lowndes, Miss Earl, Alice Victor, Annie Kohl, Baron Aberdeen, Lelia Mose, G. F. C., Ima Gray, Athelstrat, Saxon Silk, King's Flower, Malcolm Forbes and Banner Wilkes.

DECIMA DEANE AND OUTCAST MATCHED

The Fellsway Driving Club announces a card of nine races for their matinee at Combination Park on Saturday. A number of new horses are listed, and the well-known local stallion Bristillian will make his first appearance on the Mystic river track. The entries follow:

Class A, Pace—Star, Ella Hal, Baron B.

Class B, Trot and pace—Harry Tower, Dan Dee, Jr., Ruth Dillon.

Class C, Trot—Monte H, Earl W, Alice Barnett, Bristillian.

Class D, Mixed—Grenadier, Alice F, Maj. Bill.

Class E, Mixed—Kitty S, Watchman, Fitzsu, Bill C.

Class F, Pace—Ben Agan, George S, Independence.

Class G, Pace—Dorina Dean, Outcast.

Class H, Trot and pace—Lowrey, Class I, Mixed—Dan Almont, Charles H Bader, Dave Wilkes.

WANT LABOR DAY GAME.

The New Dorchester A. C. is without a game for Labor Day afternoon and would like to hear from some fast team. This team has defeated such strong teams as the Roger Wolcott, Neponset Wanderers, Somerville Athletics and others. Would like to hear from the Dorchester A. A. Thomas Martin, 195 Kilton street, Dorchester. Telephone 1713-2 Dorchester.

BASEBALL FEATURE OF THE WILLOW A. C.

The first annual field day and athletic carnival of the Willow Athletic Club, of Jamaica Plain, will take place on Labor Day, Monday, September 9, in Fess Athletic Park, Jamaica Plain.

Hundreds of the club members and friends will be present for the big feature of the games, a baseball battle in the morning between the old and young Willows. Both teams are made up of diamond stars, and a hot struggle will sure result, as the old boys think they can trim the young athletes.

This game will begin at 10 o'clock sharp. Track sports, a relay, and a tug-of-war between the Colonel M. T. Curley team and Arthur Lawrence's Walberg stars, for a gold prize offered by Colonel Doyle, of the Montgomery Guards, also on the program. Fireworks in the evening for the district will be a grand feature of the day's big outing.

"CYCLONE" FOR PACKEY.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—"Cyclone" Johnny Thompson has consented to take Packey McFarland's place in a tour of Australia. Before starting for New York, McIntosh received assurance from Thompson that he will go and box the men picked out for McFarland.

GOOD GLOUCESTER BOUTS

Matchmaker Delmont of the Lenox A. C. of Gloucester, has arranged a fine card for the weekly boxing meet next Monday night. In the preliminaries are Teddy Murphy and Young Colnie, both of Boston; Frank Maloney of Boston is carded to meet G. Scanlon of Cambridge in eight rounds; Tommy Flanagan and Pellis McGuire, and Billy Davis and Kid McDonald will mix up also in eight-round clashes.

MACK'S PITCHERS IN POOR SHAPE TO END SEASON

The slump of the Athletic twirlers during the past few weeks—while not great—is nevertheless significant because all eyes are on Mack's team just now. It has set the wise ones to wondering whether or not that great staff of twirlers that has practically pitched Connie Mack's White Elephants to an American League pennant has shot its bolt. The baseball world is now waiting to see if they can return to form in time to baffle the Cubs in the world series, for without doubt the Athletics and the Cubs will be the two teams a battle for the highest honors in baseball.

The only pitcher on the team who appears to be in as good condition as the present time, as he was when the campaign was at its hottest point, with the Red Sox and the Tigers, is Eddie Plank, he is Big Jack Coombs. He alone of all the Athletic pitchers has been able to take his turn regularly in the box with any hope of landing the opposing batting in check.

Harry Krause, the crippled phenom of the 1909 pennant campaign, has been practically worthless to the club all Summer as far as winning games is concerned, but he has shown a little form that brings home the victories. Young Atkins, of base ball fame, always were expected easily in the season, has fallen back into the class of the "promising youngsters."

Eddie Plank, the clever little southpaw whose great work in the box won the club the pennant for Philadelphia in 1902 and 1905, appears to be using his old time trick in 1905, appears to be feeling the strain of the pace that the Athletics have been traveling at in their fight for the flag. For the past month Eddie has been fighting like fury in the box when one in every five days only to be chased to the mill and meted before the half way post has been reached. With Plank out of form for the world series the Athletics' chances will be greatly injured.

Big Chief Bender, whose pitching has been one of the sensations of the American league race this season, is also beginning to show the effects of the hard fights that he has gone through in order to bring a victory home to the Quaker town. In the last few games that he has taken part in he has been hit hard and often by the opposing batsmen, who appear to be no longer baffled by his great assortment of daxlers.

Cy Morgan is pitching as good ball now as he ever did, but baseball experts are of the opinion that Connie would not use Morgan in the world series on account of his wildness, which is likely to change the side of battle at its most critical point.

The sudden change has set the fans guessing as to whether or not that great staff of pitchers which has been built around its great staff of twirlers will be able to continue at the pace that it has been setting all season, though the world series, against one of the greatest team of ball players that the game has ever produced, with its wonderful pitching staff going down hill.

ROSSMAN HAS COME BACK TO HIS OLD GAME

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—Claude Rossman's comeback is just now the talk of baseball fans in every city of the league. The large one is passing that ball with a painful regularity and playing a much improved game in the outfield. He has the worst field in the league to play, as the sun is ever present in the Minneapolis rigi garden.

Recently at Columbus one of the club officials called Rossman aside and asked him why it was that he did not play better baseball in Cominour. The fellow who asked the question had always treated Rossman well, and Ross was always spoken well of this fellow. And Ross told him in short order.

"You always treated me absolutely white, and I always played good ball for you. Ross reported as having said, "But there were others. Some of the fellows I had to run against were not to my liking nor I to theirs. We didn't get along any better than two cats with their tails tied together and thrown across a clothes-line. They knocked me at every turn, spread stories of my alleged weak points and otherwise made life miserable. I could not work right under the conditions, and was better for me and better for the club for a change."

Cantillon made a ten-strike when he picked up the big fellow, and further clinched Joe's reputation for being able to judge a ball player when he sees one. Rossman is playing his game, and the old hockiamp is also throwing his shoulders around. The other day he tossed out a player at third base who was attempting to go to first on a long single out to the right field fence, making a perfect peg clear across the lot to Ferris.

NOTRE DAMES BATTLE ROMARS TO-MORROW

A battle royal is expected to-morrow afternoon when the crack Notre Dames of Roxbury and the Romars A. C. meet in the third game of the series to decide the amateur championship of Roxbury. To date both teams have each one victory to their credit and will go into tomorrow's game with the "do or die" spirit.

The outcome of the struggle will be watched for by all lovers of amateur sport as these two teams are recognized by all as among the fastest among the amateur ranks. For the Romars Johnnie Peele and Jesseen will do the battery work pitted against Broderick and Reddington for the Dames.

A QUESTION OF BRAINS

A man will use his brains in buying a suit of clothes—argue with the tailor over cloth, fit, style, etc.—in order to get just what he wants. Yet the same man will buy any whiskey that a clerk hands him—pay good money for it—and wonder how it is his friends have better tasting—smoother whiskey—on their sideboards.

Simple enough. They exercise their brains. They get a good whiskey—something choice. It may not be our whiskey—there are many good ones on the market—but if it should happen to be from Snow's you can feel assured that it is pure and palatable.

We sell whiskey from $2 to $4.75 a gallon—smaller quantities in proportion—and it is all pure—straight whiskey.

Would like to have you call, but you can order anything by mail subject to return if not absolutely satisfactory. A hundred years in business—don't forget that!

P. S.—Don't lose sight of the fact that next Monday is Labor Day when doing your shopping today and tomorrow. We keep open till 10 o'clock Saturday evenings.

FIRST PRACTICE FOR HARVARD FOOTBALL TEAM

The Family Upstairs—Mr. Dingbat Uses Herculean Measures, but They Fail—By Herriman

BUFFALO, Sept. 2.—Mike ("Twin") Sullivan of Boston defeated Paddy Lavin of Buffalo in a ten-round bout here, gaining the decision at the end of the tenth round. In the first round Mike put a right hook to the jaw, which sent the local boy to the floor and the bell was all that saved him. Lavin staggered through the next few rounds.

In the tenth Mike nearly put him down again, and it was the consensus of opinion that if the bout had gone two more rounds the Twin would have scored a knockout.

Sullivan was hit in the eye while boxing at a local gymnasium in preparation for the bout, and an old cut was opened. Lavin landed on the injured optic early in the contest and opened it again and it gave Mike no little trouble.

The Boston boy showed wonderful cleverness in the contest and was fresh at the finish, while Lavin was about "all in."

STRAIGHT TIPS FOR SPORT FANS

HOPE THOSE RED SOX AND Yankees get together to-day. With the games bunched three in two days there will be some hot old diamond stunts over on the Kilties' park and a few of the loyal fans went over from here so as not to lose the good sport, unable to wait till those series come along with the Athletics.

NO, OLD SCOUT, THOSE STUDENTS you saw taking the Malden boat last night were not studying to pass their entrance exams. at Harvard. They were grinding up on F. L., otherwise known as the 1910 football rules. Just now the Crimson candidates are more concerned how the forward pass is utilized and where the neutral zone is than anything else, while they are down in the Pine Tree State getting gridiron exercise.

IT'S A GREAT YEAR FOR THE GIRL swimmers. Rose Pitonof won't hold her Boston Light laurels without a big effort by her rivals to share the same with her. When Elsie Ackroyd, the dazling little East Boston natator, gets back she will probably have something to say about giving the Dorchester girl a race for distance to prove who has the most endurance and speed in the water.

LETTERS HERE FOR JIMMY Gardner.

BASEBALL FANS FROM ALL PARTS of Boston will turn out in large numbers at the game to be played at Boston College grounds, Massachusetts avenue, Roxbury, next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, between teams representing the Mount Pleasant Athletic Association and the Hawthorne Athletic Club. They will play for championship honors. Both teams have connected with some of the fastest nines in the State and are about equal in batting averages and runs.

Straight Tips: Which do you consider the best catcher, Carrigan or Kleinow—that is, catching and throwing, counting batting?
LITTLE JEFF.

Just now, I think, Kleinow is the better. Carrigan must practice more if he wants to continue to shine. He has fallen off in all the fielding departments of a backstop, particularly in receiving thrown balls from the outfield and "putting them on" the runner. If own private notion, however, is that consistent practice will put him back in gilt-edged form. He's a great ball player at his best. But most veteran players simply won't practice; they think they don't need it. They forget that all the greatest artists practice continually—that's the way they make good—and that there is only one road to continuous success and that is constant hard work all the time.

Straight Tips: Who is the champion middleweight of the world? A says that Ketchel is the champion. B says that he is not, for the title stands between Ketchel and Langford.
YOUNG ZIP.
Providence, R. I.
A is right.

Straight Tips: 1—Is a bunt a hit? 2—If a man knocks a fly to center field and the centre fielder muffs it, is the runner credited with a hit? What is a scratch hit?
C. S. S. Siren.

(1) Surest thing you know if there is no error in handling it. (2) No. (3) A scratch hit is a safe hit on which no error can be charged, but which should have been an out with proper fielding.

Straight Tips—A, claims Bridgeport, Ct., is less than two hundred thousand in population. B says it is more than two hundred thousand. Who is right, and what is right, and please give population?
Windsor, Vt.
W. FITZGERALD.
A little out of my line, but A. wins by 10,000 people. Census of 1910 not made yet, but 1900 census showed 70,006, including Barnum's circus.

Straight Tips—Two out and a man on third. Batter makes a base hit and tries to reach second. Makes a two-bagger, getting put out at second. Meanwhile the man on third, seeing the ball over the plate before batter's out, claims the run counts. B. says no. Who wins?
Jamaica Plain.
BILL.
A wins.

Straight Tips: Don't you think it was mean of Pitcher Ira Flank, who pitched for the Spencer team against North Brookfield Saturday, August 27, to pass Big John Anderson, formerly of the Washington Americans, with two men on bases and two out. We have a fast team up here, but I never heard of that being done before, the catcher deliberately standing one side and playing fans with the pitcher giving a base on balls to the batter paid man on our team, the next man knocking a weak grounder to the pitcher, falling the heart out of our team, winning the game and making Anderson look foolish.
A NORTH BROOKFIELD FAN.

It was simply awful. Had I been there I would have slapped him on the wrist—just like that. Why, for meanness, John D. Rockefeller is a pikestaff of good fellowship beside that Guy Flank.

NINE UMPIRES FOR AMERICAN LEAGUE

Ban Johnson intends to have nine umpires on his staff next year. He purposes to carry an extra man on full salary, whose duty will be to fill in whenever one of the regulars is injured. Several times this year, because of injuries and sickness, it has been necessary for one man to take charge of a game. Each time the club owner in the city receiving only one umpire has invariably complained and asked that he be given the double umpire system. Having only eight men, Mr. Johnson was unable to remedy the trouble. The double umpire system is now recognized as the only system by players, fans and club owners, and Mr. Johnson hopes to be able to furnish two men to each city for every game. He always has one man in reserve.

In this way the American League will have two extra men, for Chief of Umpires Jack Sheridan, although wearing glasses, can see as well as ever, and would be able to work the bases if necessity demanded such action. Sheridan is now scouting in the minor leagues, with a hope that he may find a couple of good men for the A. L. staff.

JERSEY RIFLEMEN WIN BIG TROPHY

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 2.—In a drizzling rain which hampered riflemen, a team from the Fourth Regiment, N. G. N. J., won the Columbia trophy, in the opening match of the twentieth interstate rifle match. The trophy is a handsome prize donated to the New Jersey National Guard by the District of Columbia.

Two matches had to be postponed on account of the rain. They were the Keystone long range match at 800 yards and the New Jersey State rifle Association match at 600 yards.

RIVAL SOCCER TEAMS COMBAT

To-morrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in Foss Athletic Park, Jamaica Plain, the opening football battle of the season in the Boston Soccer Football League will take place. Big interest is being shown among the thousands of Boston followers of the great Kiltie game in the opening struggle, which should be a corker, between the Boston American team and the Lynn Citz Club.

Both clubs are in prime shape for the contest, and whoever wins will know they have been to the strenuous fray, minus serious injury.

Manager Wise, of the Boston Americans, hopes to achieve an opening victory in the hot coming league race, though the Shoe City battalion, who have been practicing hard for a fortnight, chirp confidently that there's nothing to it but old High Rock.

In fine, new uniforms, and with "Jack" Lucie refereeing the battle, the two clans will give the big crowd present a line on the championship cup struggle in which ten crack clubs are entered, for the Grieve Laurel.

In special cars the Lynn cohorts, accompanied by a bunch of admirers, will come down to the Hub in force for the first fray.

Up at Beverly, the champion Boston Rovers, too, will start the race for the big honors against the Beverly club, a new entree in the Boston League of soccer stars.

Next Saturday the Rovers are scheduled at home, Foss Park. For all those who like a scientific, muscular and fast outdoor game to witness, to-morrow's initial league soccer battle will prove a revelation in one of the grandest open-air games in the world, if they never have had the luck of seeing the fine football of old Bobby Burns thistle-down dear land.

JOHNNY MARTO BEATS JOE HYLAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Johnny Marto, the local Italian lightweight, defeated Fighting Joe Hyland in a ten-round bout which went the limit at the Long Acre Athletic Club. Hyland throughout the fight used better ring science than Marto, but the latter's blows were stronger and told on the dusky Hyland was all in at the end of the tenth round and covered with blood.

JOE THOMAS AFTER WINNER OF BOUT

Alec McLean is already on the job for Joe Thomas, the California boxer. Alec picks out the winner of the match between Bill McKinnon and Frank Mantell, which is to be decided at Lake Massabesic Coliseum, Manchester, next Monday afternoon.

Thomas is a resident of Lowell now," says Alec, "and he has something to say about that New England title. He is willing to meet the winner on exactly the same conditions that they spar under Labor Day afternoon, and I will bet $500 that he will win."

SHERIFF STEPS IN AND STOPS BOUT

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 2.—Staged as a boxing match of ten rounds, the meeting here last night between Clarence English and Jack Fitzgerald developed into a real prize fight, and was stopped by Sheriff Bailey at the end of the fifth round. The fight was arranged on the quiet and tipped off to the sports, but later it became noised about that it was for blood.

The sheriff was telephoned for, and with a force of deputy sheriffs swooped down upon the pugilists. English had Fitzgerald going from the first, and when the two men went into the ring in the fifth the latter was weak and bleeding freely.

STAR RUNNER OUT OF THE GAME

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The New York A. C. lost one of its big pointers two days ago when Herbert Trube, winner of the national mile championship two years ago, ruptured a blood vessel in his right thigh. It is doubtful if Trube will be able to compete again.

With Trube unable to compete, Bill Paull will have to uphold the N. Y. A. C.'s honor in the mile at the meders.

WANT BUNDY TO GO TO ENGLAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Efforts were made to-day to secure the promise of Thomas C. Bundy, runner up in the recent National tennis championship tournament at Newport, that he would represent America in the international tennis matches against England. Maurice E. McLaughlin, the California wonder, who created a sensation in the Newport tourney, has given his promise to the National association to compete. Bundy, also a Californian, who was the winner of the all-comers, is on his way to his home, Los Angeles.

The inability of William A. Larned to go to Australia for the matches has caused much regret in tennis circles. There may be a hitch also over Bundy, who is said to feel that he cannot further neglect his business.

Dr. James Dwight, president of the National association and chairman of the international committee, said to-day that he hoped within a short time to be able to cable to England that all was ready. The courts have yet to be selected.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S DOUBLE

CHIVALRY DEAD IN AMERICAN CITIES, SAYS DOROTHY DIX

By DOROTHY DIX

What is the matter with the men in New York?

Is gallantry and chivalry toward women dead among them?

Are they beasts of prey that make it practically impossible for any pretty, young, defenceless girl to earn an honest living innocently among them?

There have been three terrible indictments brought against the men of this city within the last few days.

One was by the young girl who shot herself in the Hotel Astor, and who gave as a reason for attempting to commit suicide that the way was made too hard a one for the girl who wanted to keep herself a good girl. In the bag that dropped from her nerveless hand after she fired a bullet into her breast was a letter to her mother, in which was this tragic and pathetic statement:

"It is really deplorable that a girl cannot get along honorably in New York. In some things I might have succeeded had I considered to the wishes of men—cultured, yes; usually money, yes, but moral, never. I could never submit to such things. Death is preferable."

And so stands the arraignment of New York men by this girl who had the courage to try to die rather than to sin.

Landon Girl's Indictment

The second indictment of New York men is by Flora Landon, the young English girl who came to America seeking work because she had heard that in this country women were treated with more respect than in any other, but who met so many insults from the men to whom she applied for positions that she dispaired herself as a boy as a matter of self-protection.

Miss Landon declares that two men to whom she applied for work offered less than living wages, and made unspeakable suggestions when she said she could not live on so small an income, and that no woman with an attractive face or pretty figure can go into the streets of New York alone night or day, and be safe from molestation.

The third indictment of New York men is by Marguerite Sullivan, a little seven-year-old country girl who came to New York to sing in the chorus of a burlesque show, and who appealed to the police to save her from the temptations of city life in which she could not protect herself. She said that she had been knocked down and insulted by stage managers at every door "Chinaman" until she was so afraid of life she wished she were dead.

All these three cases, all of which are of very recent occurrence, exceptional, or do they fairly represent the treatment that New York men extend to helpless young womanhood? Is every young girl who starts out in New York to work her fortune in as much danger as a little white lamb that wanders into a den of wolves, and has she just as little chance of escaping unhurt?

Girl Faces Trial by Fire

Of course, it is folly to bring any blanket charge against the men of any community. Without doubt, there are in this city men who are the Galahads, men who are just as optimistic, and just as much scorn in their souls to protect every weak and helpless woman that comes their way, as any knight that ever sat at King Arthur's Round Table.

There are plenty of employers who respect the good name of their women employes just as much as they do their own daughters, and once a girl gets such a place, she is safe from insult in a business office as she would be in her own home.

But it is literally true that the young woman who is pretty or attractive, who has to go to make her own living, has to go through the trial by fire, and that before she attains the position of safety—if she ever does—she has had to fight for her living with one hand and to defended her honor with the other.

She has faced every sort of temptation that can appeal to a girl who has all of a girl's natural cravings for the good things, and the bright and gay side of life. Worse than that, she has found out that, only too many times, the road to preferment in her profession, or business, is the primrose path, and that it is barred to the woman that refuses to walk it, and who insists upon treading the straight and narrow path instead.

This is no exaggeration of the situation. Time and again I have listened to the tearful story of a poor girl stenographer who had been forced to give up her position, or else submit to insults from some man in power who made her ability to hold her job absolutely dependent upon hers.

Other girls have told me, with shuddering disgust, of the coarse and vulgar conversations they were forced to listen to from their male fellow workers.

It is a matter of common knowledge that many employers do not pay girls a living wage, and thus deliberately throw into deadly temptation those who would make an honest living if they were permitted to.

The case of the actress is even worse, because when a girl goes upon the stage, no matter how good and pure she is, or how destitute of living she is, she becomes the game of every evil man she meets, and is so conclusively hunted down that only the strongest souled and those with the most dauntless courage can ever protect themselves and win out in the unequal struggle.

And so the pursuit of young girls goes on among the stone and brick canyons of New York, with a savagery and a lack of pity and mercy that rivals that of the aboriginal cliff dwellers.

And the most curious and barbarous feature of it is that the offenders are nearly always married men—men who have young daughters of their own—daughters who may some day be forced to earn a living as these other girls are, and who may become the victims of some other man, just as these men prey on some other man's daughter. Yet the thought of their little girls at home does not affect these men's hearts with pity or make them hold their hands.

Greatest Danger for Girls

Undoubtedly, similar conditions exist in every large city, for human nature is the same everywhere, and New York has no monopoly on vice, but indisputably conditions are worse here, and women are treated with less respect and less chivalry in this city than anywhere else in the United States.

Why, only God—or the devil—knows. For one reason, perhaps, because New York is so big that tidings may be hidden in it, and it is easier for a man to lead the double life than it would be in a smaller community where everybody's comings and goings are known. There is no peering like that of our neighbor's eyes. Then the general standard of conduct toward women in New York is low. Even among their equals, men show women little of the courtesy that they do in other places. The New Yorker must dare not stand uncovered while he talks to a woman friend, as a Southern man does. He does not look out for his woman companion's comfort as the Western man does. He does not kiss her hand as the European does.

In public conveyances, women are herded like cattle; they are elbowed and insulted by street car guards, and all of this the New man's chivalry of woman, and kills his gallantry, and makes him revert to the primitive theory that woman was solely created for his pleasure.

Finally, New York is grossly immaterial. Broadly speaking, it is animated by only two great passions—the pursuit of money and the pursuit of pleasure—and the New York man abandons himself to both with unbridled ardor.

He works like a fiend, and only too often he enjoys himself like a satyr. That is why the life of the working girl is beset by perils on every hand.

What New York needs is a crusade of chivalry, a new knighthood that would make every man ready to be the champion of every weak and helpless girl, and to help her as he would his own daughter. For, in the end every man especially every man who employs women—is his sister's keeper, and he cannot escape the responsibility, no matter how he tries.

Married Life the First Year

No. 12—The Mouse

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

SEVERAL times lately Anna had complained of the mice in the kitchen and had asked for a trap. But Helen, who could never bear to have anything killed, had refused to get one.

The most harrowing memories of her childhood were the cruel rat traps that had been kept in the pantry and cellar of her grandfather's home. She still shuddered at the thought of the helpless, squirming, things with a leg crushed in the old-fashioned "steel trap" lying there for hours, until they were found and killed.

Again and again she had stolen down in the cellar where the traps were set with bits of cheese, and had sprung them with a stick, so that she might sleep that night free from the thought that some little creature was lying there maimed and suffering until morning.

And countless times, when she found them caught in those ungodlike traps which injurious but do not injure—she had opened the wire door to free them before the servant could throw them into a pail of water or let them out before a leaping dog.

She Barred All Traps

And so now, when she had a home of her own, she was most emphatic in her instructions that there were to be no traps of any kind.

It was one afternoon just before Warren came home that she reached up on the shelf in the bathroom to get a fresh box of matches for his smoking table. On this shelf she also kept the bleiswei, and it was from behind a package of seed that a tiny mouse sprang out, and in its terror fell over the edge of the shelf into the bathtub underneath.

For a second it rushed wildly around the polished porcelain tub and then began leaping up the slick sides only to slide back again.

The glass-like finish of the tub gave it nothing to hold to—it was helplessly imprisoned. And still it leaped frantically—but only to reach just below the edge and then fall back. Its little body was quivering with terror.

Helen, after her first start and cry of surprise when the mouse had darted out, watched it with pity and dismay.

"Anna—Anna, come here quick!"

Anna appeared at the bathroom door, her hands covered with flour.

"Look—Look! How can we get it out without hurting it?"

With something like a short Anna reached over and turned on the hot water faucet. But in a flash Helen had dragged her back and turned it off.

She Scolds the Maid

"Don't you dare do a thing like that!" Anna had never seen her so angry. "Do you think I'd let you scald that little thing? If I ever see you do anything so cruel again—you can't work for me! Do you understand?"

"I didn't know that was the hot water, ma'am. I was just going to drown it."

"Well, even to drown a thing trapped and helpless like that—I won't have it! You've been wanting to get traps and I won't have them either. I want you to understand now that nothing is going to be made to suffer or to be killed in this apartment."

The mouse was still leaping frantically up the slicks of the tub.

"Oh, it can never get out itself—how can we help it?"

"I don't know, ma'am," rather sullenly, resentful of the scolding.

The sound of a door closing and steps in the hall.

"Oh, it's Warren!" joyfully. "Warren—Warren, come here! There's a mouse in the bathtub and it can't get out!"

"That's tragic!" coming to the door.

"Oh, it's so frightened! Can you get it out without hurting it or frightening it more?"

Warren to the Rescue

He glanced at the little thing darting quiveringly around. And then—he simply let down the chain of the rubber stopper which had been caught up over the faucets.

In a flash the mouse had climbed up the chain, leaped to the floor and disappeared behind the tub.

"Oh," Helen put up her arms and kissed him impulsively, "I never thought of that! You are the dearest and wisest and best man in the world!"

"As shown by my valorous rescuing of the mouse."

FAIR INES

By THOMAS HOOD

O SAW ye not fair Ines?
She's gone into the West,
To dazzle when the sun is down,
And rob the world of rest.
She took our daylight with her,
The smiles that we love best,
With morning blushes on her cheek,
And pearls upon her breast.

O turn again, fair Ines.
Before the fall of night,
For fear the moon should shine alone,
And stars unrivall'd bright;
And blessed will the lover be
That walks beneath their light,
And breathes the love against my cheek
I dare not even write!

Would I had been, fair Ines,
That gallant cavalier,
Who rode so gally by thy side,
And whispered thes so near!
Were there no bonny dames at home,
Or no true lovers here,
That he should cross the sea to win
The dearest of the dear?

I saw thee, lovely Ines,
Descend along the shore,
With bands of noble gentlemen,
And banners waved before;
And gentle youth and maidens gay,
And snowy plumes they wore;
It would have been a beauteous dream—
If it had been no more!

Alas, alas! fair Ines,
She went away with song,
With Music waiting on her steps,
And shouting of the throng;
But some were sad, and felt no mirth,
But only Music's wrong,
In sounds that sang farewell, farewell,
To her you've loved so long.

Farewell, farewell, fair Ines!
That vessel never bore
So fair a lady on the lock,
Nor danced so light before—
Alas for pleasures on the sea,
And sorrows on the shore!
The smile that bless'd one lover's heart,
Has broken many more!

Men Take Love Philosophically

By Beatrice Fairfax

I HAVE the greatest respect and admiration for Ella Wheeler Wilcox and her profound knowledge of the human heart; but I cannot agree with her that men die of wounded love.

"I do not, for one moment, deny that men are incapable of great and lasting love, for there are.

But they take love more philosophically than woman does.

Take married people, for instance. The husband goes off on a business trip. He is busy and interested; he thinks of home very often, but it is of the home comforts he thinks, quite as much as his wife. He is having a very good time, thank you, and he very thought does not hinge on the moment of meeting.

With the Wife, It's Different

With the wife, it is quite a different matter. She misses her husband with a passion of longing, and, from the moment he leaves, she begins to get ready for his return.

The house is turned upside down in preparation; his favorite dinner is prepared; her prettiest gown is donned, and then, with happy beating heart, she awaits the coming of her king.

And the king probably stops at the office or the club on his way uptown.

Would any wife on her way home from a visit stop and shop?

Woman's power of missing and longing is ten thousand times greater than man's.

Is it any wonder, then, that she is more apt than man to die of a broken heart?

They are not single she goes through the agony of missing; there is nothing to take her mind off her loss.

Personally, I know one dear woman who said to me some years after her husband's death:

"I am alive because I have three young children, and I have to live for their sakes. But I am half dead, and have been, ever since that dreadful day, five years ago. Part of me went out of the world with him, and it has only been by sheer will that I have lived; I have made myself eat, and I have fought many times against the temptation to end my life. The ache in my heart is worse to-day than it was the day he died, because I know, now, what it is to live without him."

The reason why man does not die of heart-break is that there are always plenty of women ready to help mend the break.

A heart broken man is more interesting than a heart-broken woman.

The man looks interesting and sad, but his health does not suffer; whereas, the woman grieves until she loses health and looks. Men are afraid of her grief, and keep away from her.

The average man is by nature cheerful, and he has a healthy abhorrence of tears.

Pride and reserve forbid that he should make a display of his grief, and, as he has to appear cheerful in public, the habit soon grows upon him, and he is cheerful at all times.

I have known a man to lose his wife and grieve for her desperately; but in three years' time he was very much alive to the charms of other women.

I do not criticise man for his ability to forget, and to be consoled; it is a mercy that things are as they are, for it would be a very sad world if men suffered as women do.

Do Men Marry for Love?

Woman's more delicate nervous and physical organization makes her a prey to all emotions. She has, in some ways, less self-control than man, and she certainly has much less to distract her and prevent her from brooding on her sorrows.

I do not at all agree with Mrs. Wilcox's statement that more men than women marry for love.

Man, being independent, has the power to marry to please himself, but many times when he thinks he marries for love it is mere physical attraction which causes him to marry.

And no man on earth ever died for love who married for that cause.

Women undoubtedly do marry for money, for position, for a home, for fear of being an old maid, and other sordid reasons—just as Mrs. Wilcox says—but the great majority of women marry for love, pure and simple.

Mrs. Wilcox says that eight marriages in every ten, in the civilized world, are based on some other platform than great, all compelling love in the heart of the woman.

The flat contradiction of that theory lies in the fact that the world is growing better every day, and if there were not great love between the parents, the children, born with the world, would be of a class to degrade rather than to uplift it.

The woman who does not deeply love a man will not bear him a good child.

There is no limit to the absorbing interests in a man's life, whereas, with woman, her interests centre about her small home circle. One broken link in that precious chain means heart-ache and perhaps heart-break.

Those who commit suicide, do not die of broken hearts: they die of disappointment. After a week's consideration, not one person in a hundred would commit suicide through blighted love.

The broken-hearted die a slow death; for hearts do not break easily. Of courses, if there is any latent organic heart trouble, the shock of loss or grief, may kill, but that is dying of a weak heart—not of a broken heart.

The Chord That Snaps

The dear Lord "who made and loved us all" put into the heart of woman one little pulsing chord that, once snapped, can never be renewed; and, when that happens, the world knows that some woman has died of a broken heart.

And with Kipling I say: "Many, pity women."

"He's a Prince"

By KENNETT HARRIS

THERE is no one denies
He's a jolly good fellow.
Very freely he buys,
There is no one denies,
But the family eyes
Show in black, blue and yellow.
There is no one denies
He's a jolly good fellow.

He's a Prince, so they say,
But perhaps they are joshing.
To the limit he'll play.
He's a Prince, so they say,
But he leads all the day,
And his wife takes in washing.
He's a Prince, so they say,
But perhaps they are joshing.

He's the salt of the earth;
Quite too salt, I am thinking.
That's a phrase of small worth;
He's the salt of the earth
When he's out of a berth
On account of his drinking.
He's the salt of the earth,
Quite too salt, I am thinking.

THE SHIFTLESS WAY

PROFESSOR WOODBRIDGE RILEY of Vassar suggests that young women should regard marriage as a profession. "Of course, I don't mean by that," said Professor Riley recently, "that a young woman should sell herself. I mean that she should use her brain in marrying. The sentimental idea of marriage as prevalent to-day—letting marriage come about of itself, so to speak—that idea seems to me as shiftless and foolish and lazy as the old lady's idea of spelling. This old lady, as she sat on an Atlantic City pier writing letters, drew a line under a word and said: 'You know, my dear, when I don't know how to spell a word I underscore it like this. Then if it spelled wrong it passes for a good joke, and if it is spelled right it doesn't matter.'"

Freckles

"Once Freckled Always Freckled" No Longer True—How to Remove Quickly.

Miss E. M. Berger of Beloit, Wis., along with thousands of others, believed it impossible to remove freckles, and that she'd always have them. She knows better now. She heard of Kintho, got a two-ounce package and tells her experience in the following letter: "I was always of the opinion that freckles could NOT be removed, but I thought I would give Kintho a trial, and it has truly convinced me that freckles CAN be removed. It has proved all you claim for it."

Get a two-ounce package of Kintho (extra strength) at Houghton & Dutton Co., Jordan Marsh Co., or Riker-Jaynes' Drug Stores and see how quickly it will banish your freckles.

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

WHAT ARE THE 40 BEAUTY QUALITIES WOMEN POSSESS?

What are the forty qualities of beauty in woman?

Helleu, the French etcher, gave that as the correct artistic number.

He remarked, incidentally, that Mrs. Phil Lydig, the society beauty, possesses thirty-nine. What the missing point is Helleu did not indicate.

But what are the forty points of beauty? Some artists do not classify beauty so categorically. Albert P. Lucas, the distinguished New York portrait painter, for instance, says that if an artist cared to enumerate every point of beauty in fair femininity he could total up a list of about a thousand.

"To an artist," he said, "there would be more nearly a thousand cardinal points of beauty than forty. It is color that creates them. But many of these would be technicalities of form, of no interest to the general public. For instance, there is the length of the upper arm in proportion with the forearm.

"The essential qualities of feminine beauty may, I think, be summed up as symmetry, color-length of line, intelligence, refinement, harmonious hands and perfect feet.

"One might by fine shading divide and subdivide these attributes till one obtained forty or even one hundred cardinal points. But I have never seen a woman whose person united even these qualities I have mentioned.

Perfect Beauty Rare.

"In many years of study and painting I have seen just one face which, from an artist's standpoint I could pronounce perfectly beautiful. I have never seen a perfect figure. But I have used models of all nationalities, and I am convinced the figure of the American woman most nearly approaches perfection.

There is pearly whiteness to the American skin that I have never found elsewhere, a correctness of proportion, a length of line that even the famous Italian models do not possess. The Italians are too heavy in the limbs, their ankles and wrists lack definition. The French woman has not the American coloring. The English woman is too narrow in the hips. She is built more like a boy than a woman.

"I will not attempt to pronounce between the merits of the blonde and brunette types. Each is exquisite in its way. The one perfect face I have seen belongs to a blonde, not the cold, steely variety, but a mellow, golden beauty, with brown eyes. The brunette with black hair shading a warm pallor is an equally beautiful type, but I have never seen it in such perfection.

"Intelligence is essential to the modern conception of beauty. However classical the proportions, a face must have a spark, it must be alive. By intelligence I don't mean education or culture. The Italian woman who posed for my bust of "Ecstasy" was as ignorant as could be, but her face beamed with intelligence, with perception. The idea is ridiculous that beauty can exist without brain, though the reverse is certainly true."

Brains Without Beauty.

"You mean," he was asked, "that brains exist without beauty?"

"Certainly," answered the painter, "though brains to a certain extent confer beauty. I see women in the subway or on the street that are absolutely beautiful and yet if I were to meet them afterward some trick of voice or smile or gesture might convince me momentarily that they were beautiful. One of the cardinal points of beauty," Mr. Lucas added, "is beyond the painter's rendering—a sweet voice.

"Beautiful hands are very scarce, rare almost as perfect feet. The hand is so characteristic that given a drawing of a strange hand a palmist can guess everything about its owner. He could, indeed, almost reconstruct her face from one. Hands are very difficult to paint. For that reason many artists slur them. And perhaps that's why in so many instances nature slurs them, too.

The Perfect Foot.

"A perfect foot," Mr. Luce continued, "means an arched instep and an arch underneath the foot, and it means undistorted little toes. If you consider detail, there are ten cardinal points of beauty right there! I know of one pair of perfect feet in America, and possibly three—two, three—in Europe.

"Refinement is another very essential attribute. There can be no great beauty without it," the painter continued, "and it is eminently a characteristic of the American face.

"Art knows no nationality, perhaps, but after years of painting in Paris, from models of all nations, I returned me to find on my return to my own country the most beautiful face and the most perfect figure I have ever seen. The face belonged to a young girl who sat to me for portrait. Her family has been American for 300 years, so she is certainly an American type and yet so classical."

With the fingers of his right hand Mr. Lucas measured in imaginary face in the three equal divisions, and added enthusiastically, "So Greek."

Athletics and "Figures."

"The nearly perfect figure I speak of belonged to a young woman who posed for a picture I call 'Twilight.' It is a study in round curves, strong yet utterly feminine. You know the outdoor sports our women have been going in for so much tend to masculinize the figures, to square the shoulders for instance. While the result will eventually not be so artistic, I suppose the hygienic benefit will be more than compensating. And feminine athletics have done much to restore another cardinal point of beauty—the normal waist line. A woman's waist and hips should make one gently curving line, not two, nearly at right angles from each other."

With both hands the painter carved an imaginary hour glass in the air and then pushed it away from him. "That is hideous," he said, "but fortunately getting more and more rare."

American Women Saner.

"It seems to be that a remarkable change has come over the American ideal in the last ten years. Formerly the popular type of a beautiful woman was simply a very young and very much fussed up creature that an artist would not look at a second time if he could help it. Today real beauty is understood and appreciated.

"The one thing more phenomenal than this change in public taste is the development of American art and artists. The pictures our young men are turning out are marvellous, and there is no doubt that we owe this sudden renaissance to a handful of discriminating American collectors, men like William T. Evans, Dr. Humphreys, Louis Ettinger, Thomas Clarke. And these men believe American canvases worth buying and buy them. They seem to think," Mr. Lucas laughed. "that American art has thirty-nine out of forty cardinal points of beauty, anyhow."

The Land-Lily

By BLISS CARMAN

THE white water lilies they sleep so
The lake,
Till over the mountains the sun bids them
wake.

Each pure, perfect blossom unfolds to the ray.

Each affluent petal outstretched and uncurled

To the glory and gladness and shine of the world.

Oh, whiter hand-lily, asleep in the dawn,
While yet the cool curtain of stars is half drawn,

And all the dark forest is mystic and still,
With the great yellow planet aglow on the hill,

Hark, somewhere among the gray beeches
a thrush

Sends the first thrill of sound to re-quicken the hush!

With a flutter of eyelids, a sigh soft and deep,

An unfolding of rosy warm fingers from sleep,

For one perfect day more to love, gladden and bless

Thy spirit comes back to its flower-like home.

THE HEIGHT OF AFFLUENCE

Alias Jimmy Valentine

By JOHN A. MOROSO

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

SYNOPSIS.

JIMMY VALENTINE, the most remarkable cracksman of the age, who opens safes merely by manipulations of finger ends, has succeeded in robbing the strong vault of the Green National Bank.

He and his pal, Mike Cotton, get away to Buffalo with $25,000, and double back on their tracks to Avon, N. Y., to the human environment which they think will be the least suspicion. Meanwhile Detective Ryan attempts to strike a trail. Jimmy, who is riding alone in the country, sees Ryan coming. A terrific struggle ensues in which Jimmy gets the best of the fight. He relentlessly mashes the fingers of the detective's hand and sentenced to ten years in Sing Sing, but Ryan, he is certain, has succeeded in breaking another safe at Springfield, Mass., and is on his feeds like his pal on time, and that Doyle gets to work.

Doyle lands Sing Sing to pry and force Bill Avery, who is a close pal of Red Jocelyn and Jimmy, to turn back on the prison authorities. Bill refuses and is threatened by Doyle. Avery leaves the prison after finishing his term of three years and ten months.

Meanwhile Jimmy in the prison is visited by the sweet girl of the Gate of Hope Society, who have with them a distinguished humanitarian—none other than Lieutenant-Governor Ben Lane, himself. In his pretty niece, Rose Lane, the daughter of an old Virginia banker, she is trying to get Jimmy to be shown through Sing Sing.

Jimmy, in the warden, feels honored by the visit of Ryan and decides to show him how impossible it is for him to escape. Ryan is convinced that Jimmy has no intention of escaping.

An inventor, who has perfected a wonderful lock opposite to Jimmy's peculiar safe cracking skill, who opens it with a bent hair pin.

"I'll bet," the warden thinks to himself, "that a high-class crook" can do, and tells his visitors he has a man who can open the safe in his office, merely by the sensitive touch of his fingers. He challenges Jimmy's genius, which is confirmed by discovery, the Rose Lane is beautiful and interesting. Jimmy, who has been reformed him, and tells her under the influence of his fascination, that the man in the convict suit is her savior. In the presence of all, Rose steps up and thanks Jimmy for saving her life.

The warden is amazed. Then he calls on Jimmy to show all he still is opening the safe. Jimmy refuses, but when Rose begs him—that he will not—he refuses to do so. Jimmy, at the request of Rose, sends for a set of burglar's tools. Mike Cotton, Jimmy's pal, is arrested, but the lieutenant-governor lets him be still and says Jimmy to tell his story.

Valentine declares that he never knew Cotton, having met him on the train; that they played cards and he won some of the money; and that the money he had stolen at first that he had interfered when Cotton, in a drunken fit, struck that Cotton, to get even, had accused of the crime. The governor is impressed and promises to rescue and reinstate Jimmy in society. Rose is profoundly impressed and promises to help him. The governor leaves them together. Jimmy tells them that his real name is Lee Randolf, that he was born a south into Jimmy is confused and about the same time Red Jocelyn and Bill Avery are set free, having done their time.

Rose Lane is delighted, and overcomes all reserve on the part of Jimmy. She is grateful for her father and sets to work to help Jimmy. Jimmy tells Rose that her father is her reluctant to make love to her, but when he tells her the story of Jimmy's supposed innocence and his subsequent life, she is grateful to him, which she was rescued from the clutch of a brute. Mr. Lane begins to relent.

"I'll no good to be shocked, dad," she half whispered on his knee. "It's true. And then he went to prison on the death rattle of a beast like that. I'm going to make it good to him if I can. He is a man. And he is a man; every drop of my blood tells me so."

"Then I see which he knows how you feel?" asked the father tremulously.

Rose lifted her face and squared her shoulders with pride and determination.

"No, dad," she declared solemnly, "and he never will unless you believe him worthy of me."

"You promise that?" exclaimed Lane, his face beaming the delight at the due spirit of his child.

"I do, dad."

"Then I am with you in your effort," the father said, kissing her.

Steps were heard in the hall leading to the prison door. Father and daughter turned their eyes to see who was about to enter.

A trim young man, faultlessly dressed and carrying a silver-tipped walking cane, crossed the threshold, hat in hand.

"Mr. Valentine," announced Knox.

CHAPTER XVII.

ROSE'S father insisted on one thing before the final arrangement for taking Jimmy Valentine to Illinois with them. He wanted to run for Governor, who had reviewed the evidence in Jimmy's case.

After Jimmy was presented to him, and the three had chatted pleasantly for a few minutes, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Webster appeared, and Mr. Lane took the opportunity to hurry to the Capitol with his daughter, Jimmy promising to remain in the hotel until they returned.

The ladies of the Gate of Hope were delighted at the departure of Rose and her father. Their opportunity to take over Jimmy as an asset for the society was at hand.

They sat down beside Jimmy, as if determined that nothing would happen to take him from their hands.

"And how," began Mrs. Webster, "what do you contemplate doing?"

"Find me a position," replied Jimmy, somewhat embarrassed.

"We have arranged all of that, Mr. Valentine," cried Mrs. Moore, delightedly.

"You have a choice of three places for you," explained Mrs. Webster. "One is in a grain elevator"—

"Yes," interjected Jimmy. "I can imagine that would be safe for a man suspected of having robbed a bank."

The second," resumed the enthusiastic lady, "is checker in a scrap-iron yard.

"I'm still under suspicion, I see," said Jimmy.

"And the third is the first male officer of the Gate of Hope Society," exclaimed Mrs. Webster, triumphantly.

"Treasurer?" asked Jimmy.

"No, secretary," replied Mrs. Webster. "We agree that if you take the last position," explained Mrs. Moore, "it would be a great help to us because of your knowledge of the—er"——

"Inside of prison, ladies?" he asked.

"Yes," they replied.

"I am grateful, ladies, that I cannot accept any of the places." Jimmy told them.

He Refuses the Offers.

"What!" they cried in astonishment.

"I appreciate all that you have done for me," added Jimmy, "but I know that many of the men who would place me wants me. They are giving me a job to please you. It would worry them to employ me, and I would be careless at all the time that I was under suspicion. It is better for me to take another name, and try to get along without dragging the past at my heels. I thank you very much, ladies. Goodby."

Jimmy rose and held out his hand in turn to each of the women.

"Goodby, Mrs. Webster," he said to Mrs. Moore.

"Goodby, Mrs. Moore," he said to Mrs. Webster.

"You have the names mixed," cried both ladies in a huff.

"I beg your pardon, ladies," he said. "But I want to assure you that the secret of the Gate of Hope Society will always be locked in my breast."

"What secret, sir?" demanded Mrs. Mrs. Webster. "We have no secrets in our society."

"Why, the fact that you have saved me from prison life, and have started me out on a new life with the old life entirely dead and forgotten," chided Jimmy gently. He had been the intention of the ladies to give the full story to the newspapers this afternoon, so that the Gate of Hope Society would have its fame spread broadcast. They went away a little perturbed and greatly disappointed.

No sooner were the ladies gone when a man, with quick, furtive glances about the room, stepped over the threshold and fly bounded to Jimmy's side.

It was Red Jocelyn.

"You here, Red!" exclaimed Jimmy.

"Leave it to me to keep track of an old pal, Jimmy," was the response as Red held out his hand.

Jimmy took the hand listlessly.

"What's the grouch?" demanded Red.

"Nothing," was the reply.

"Don't try to kid me, pard," said Red. "You've served your bit, Red?"

"Yes."

"And you've been in one of those rotten holes and still think it's a good game?" asked Jimmy.

"You've weakened," said Red.

"I've turned square, Red."

"You're crazy."

"It's only the man who thinks he can beat the law that's crazy."

"You'd have beat it, but for Cotton, who blew on you because you beat him out of a dame," whispered Red.

Jimmy's right hand shot to Red's throat and closed there.

"You rat!" he said, trying to control himself. "If you ever speak of her again I'll murder you! Now, get out of here and forget me."

Jimmy released his hold, and Red straightened his collar.

A BOATMAN was annoyed by the foolish behavior of one of a party he had taken for a sail. When the boat sprang a leak far out from the shore the boatman served out lifebelts, but he gave none to the lunatic who had angered him.

Widow's Plain Tribute to Mansfield

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—That the heart of the widow of Richard Mansfield, America's great player, who died three years ago, has not been healed by time, was shown when there appeared in the obituary columns of the newspapers a memorial notice as follows:

In Memoriam.
RICHARD MANSFIELD.
WAITING!
August 30th, 1907.

"So many worlds, so much to do,
So little done, such things to be.
How know I what had need of thee,
For thou wert strong as thou wert true."

On the Rialto it was believed that Mrs. Mansfield had the "In Memoriam" advertisement given the newspapers. It was much commented on, especially because the single word "Waiting" gave hint of the profoundly religious sentiment of hope for a meeting in the hereafter.

Mansfield's place has not yet been filled by an American actor, for his range from tragedy to comedy, with all of the minor phases between, has proved beyond the scope of the players that have followed him.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

Fashionables Are Now Hunting in Berkshires

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Now that the season at the resorts has practically ended, the fashionables are flocking to the Berkshires, where things are to be gayer this year than ever, and where the sound of the hunter's horn is already echoing and re-echoing among the hills. This is the happy hunting ground of the elect, and riding to hounds is the sport of all sports at this season. The Hunt ball is always looked upon as the smartest affair of all seasons, and it has just been announced that it will be held this year on Friday evening, September 16, the night before the Hunt races at the Lee Pleasure Park.

The committee consists of Frederick Schenck, Newbold Morris and Girard Foster. Last year the ball was given at the beautiful country estate of Spencer P. Shotter, "Shadow Brook," which contains the largest private ball room in the Berkshires, but as yet it has not been decided where the ball will be given this year.

Another interesting event in the Berkshires will be the tennis tournament, which Miss Marland Burbank and Jean Marshall Crane of the Pittsfield Country club, have arranged to take place on the club courts, from September 9 to 16. There will be several events, including singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

Miss Josephine Rantoul, the pretty daughter of the Neal Rantouls, has rejoined at Beverly Farms from her visit at the William A. Gaston home at North east Harbor, Me.

Mrs. William Bradford Robbins has purchased the Perkins mansion on Marlboro street, where she and Mr. Robbins are intending to take up their abode when the place has been repaired and renovated throughout. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins have occupied an apartment at the Torrington on Commonwealth avenue.

Irvin McDowell Garfield has purchased the former David Brack house on Marlboro street, which the family will occupy this Winter.

Mrs. Garfield, before her marriage, was Susan Emmons, and they have been previously living on Beacon street. Mrs. Garfield has been for the greater part of the Summer with her father, Nathaniel H. Emmons, at his Summer place in Falmouth.

Mrs. Francis Vernon Lloyd of Philadelphia, who has been of the cottage colony at York Harbor this Summer, is to spend some time in Boston on her way homeward, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lowell, Commonwealth avenue, at their country place at Chestnut Hill.

Mrs. Lloyd who was Molly Lowell, was one of the foremost belles of her set and her return visits to Boston are always made as happily as possible by her many girlhood friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, have gone from their villa at Manchester to Raquette Lake, N. Y., to spend a couple of months at the camp of Mr. Carnegie's brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Thayer, who have figured conspicuously in the smart affairs at Newport this season, are passing there tomorrow for their country place at Lenox, Mass., where they will go for a cruise in Maine, where they will remain late into the Autumn.

Mrs. Roger Wolcott and Miss Cornelia Wolcott are spending the late season at their Beverly Farms home with Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Wolcott (Hannah Stevenson) have returned to their residence, nearby, from Pride's Crossing, where they spent several weeks with Mrs. Wolcott's parents, Colonel and Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge of Gray Cliff, Newton Centre, have announced the engagement of their daughter Miss Isabelle Coolidge, to samuel S. Stevens of Brookline.

NO MORE INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH.

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapepsin and realize not only immediate but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach. Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal Griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for our-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drugstore.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

EXTRA! FIRE! PUT OUT THOSE GOTHAM LADS!

The baseball team of the Boston Fire Department will try to extinguish the fiery record of the New York Department's team on the Huntington avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon.

The Boston fire laddies are planning to get into the game as though it was a three-alarm fire in a bad district.

This will be a return game. The first was in New York on July 16. The New Yorkers won, 6 to 5. Hence the enthusiasm of the Boston boys to win. Manager James P. Maloney of the Bostons declares that his men will win next Saturday.

The Boston Fire Department team is one of the strongest teams about Boston. It is well equipped with battery men and fielders, and the boys, their manager says, can be counted upon to play a superior game to that played in New York when they were vanquished at the eleventh hour.

Carroll to the Rescue.

One of the most enthusiastic supporters of the team has is Acting Commissioner Francis M. Carroll. He went to New York and saw the boys beaten, but, like Manager Maloney, he is confident, and says that he can see nothing but a win for the home talent on next Saturday afternoon.

Many business men have interested themselves in the game, while the members of the department are doing their part to make the affair a success. Money secured from the sale of tickets will go toward paying the expenses of the New Yorkers and entertaining them during their stay here.

"Tom" Finn, the former Gate of Heaven, Holy Name club star; David Truesdale, of Southport, "Jack" and "Bill" McDermott are the men Maloney can select from to do the pitching. He is well fixed for receivers. Eddie McCarthy, who used to be Finn's battery partner at the Gate of Heaven Holy Name club, is showing up well behind the bat, and the same may be said of "Joe" Dunn. Since the team was organized Dunn has done the bulk of the catching. Gus Moran and Dennie Condon are other players that can work behind the bat if necessary.

New York Team Is Fast.

Either Truesdale or W. McDermott can be played at first, while W. McDermott, J. McDermott, Dunn, O'Brien and Condon can be used in the infield. O'Brien can be played at either second or third.

In the outfield there is Raftus, Stukel, Stevens and Dalton to pick from. Maloney has a versatile combination. The men can play anywhere. They have won five of the seven games they played, putting in the shade all of the soldier teams they have faced, as well as the Chelsea and Fall River police.

The New York team is very fast. All of the visiting players have had either professional or semi-professional experience, and they fail to see why they cannot add another victory here. All of the firemen and their friends are interested in the ball game, and there is likely to be a banner crowd at Huntington avenue grounds next Saturday afternoon.

Boston Fire Fighters Who Shine on Diamond

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Some brokers thought Roosevelt's speech was the weight on the market, but forecasts of it had been so well circulated that the leading banking interests did not concur in this view. Evidence is accumulating, however, that every time Roosevelt says anything particularly strenuous somebody drops a lot of stock on the market.

A guess that Standard Oil interests are doing this would probably come near the truth. The Standard Oil people feel that they are being persecuted by the government and, having lost their political power, the Stock Exchange is the only place left in which they can express their opinion of current events.

Railroad shares were weak in common. It being impossible to pick out one that had any particular reason for declining. The Pennsylvania and Central reports will be duplicated in time by all the other big systems, and thus one of these reports indicates all the stocks. The era of reduced dividends predicted months ago in this column is becoming clearer to the Wall Street vision in the light of these reports. Nothing but a radical increase of rates can prevent it.

Following the discouraging July report of the Pennsylvania, the New York Central lines made public their figures for that month yesterday and dealt the stock market another staggering blow. The total of all Central lines shows an increase in operating expenses equal to more than double the increase of gross earnings. The result is a decrease in operating income of $1,294,576, or more than 20 per cent.

The showing of the Lake Shore was remarkably bad: a gross increase of $917,543 was accompanied by an operating increase of $1,523,545. This leaves the net revenue for the month 25 per cent. less than in July last year.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas, the St. Louis Southwestern and the Norfolk & Western issued reports of the same character, but not quite so bad. Reports for the third week of August show that the railroads are increasing their gross earnings at the rate of about 22 per cent., while operating expenses are increasing at the rate of 29 per cent.

Now that the first excitement over the international agreement for the curtailing of copper production has worn off, stockholders of the old-fashioned deep mines are trying to figure out their stand. Amalgamated and Anaconda each own everything in Butte. The stocks are simply two names for practically the same property.

On the basis of 63 for Amalgamated, the Butte mines are worth $97,650,000. On the basis of 26 for Anaconda, those same properties are worth $163,800,000. It is all a question whether the investor wants to buy "sheep" or "deer," as the older Rothschilds used to say. The Rothschilds have not lost their sense of humor, even in this generation, for, being in control of about one-third of the copper output of the world, the Rothschilds have kindly consented to curtail production 15 per cent. If the American interests that produce two-thirds will also curtail 15 per cent.

Having entered into this agreement with the Rothschilds, the Amalgamated-Anaconda people expect to get a profit of 2 cents a pound on their copper. To pay out the market price of Amalgamated the Butte camp will have to produce 8,190,000,000 pounds of copper. This makes no allowance for interest.

Steel companies report a better inquiry for steel, and the outlook is considered more cheerful as compared with July and August.

The way now is made clear for the banks of the United States to put into circulation $500,000,000 in emergency money at the first sign of a financial stringency by the interpretation that Secretary MacVeagh has placed on emergency currency.

The law provides that commercial paper upon which emergency currency may be issued shall include only notes representing actual commercial transactions which shall bear the names of at least two responsible persons, and have not more than four months to run.

A large proportion of the banks hold the notes of reputable individuals and corporations who have been bought from note brokers. These notes bear only the name of the maker. Secretary MacVeagh has decided that the indorsement of the holding bank upon such notes will constitute the second indorsement which the law calls for.

SAVED BY CURLING IRON.

ORANGE, Sept. 2.—Charles Vorce, of North New Salem, swallowed a fishbone at dinner and nearly choked to death. His father hit upon the happy idea of using his wife's curling irons. With the aid of these he succeeded in reaching the bone and the boy's distress was soon relieved.

DULL TRADE IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The dull and heavy conditions which have prevailed on the stock market during the last few days were continued at the opening in Wall street to-day, many of the leading issues showing losses below the extreme declines of yesterday. B. & O. was especially weak, starting with a decline of ⅝ of a point, and it finally sold as low as 101½ as compared with yesterday's low price of 101⅝. Union & Southern Pacific also declined, but St. Paul scored a fractional advance on its first sales of the day.

Trading was very light, the inclement weather being blamed, and also because shorts showed little inclination to increase their holdings on the eve of Labor Day. Trading on the curb was firm and quiet. The general market in London was dull with American shares showing no changes of consequence. Copper stocks showed fractional declines.

BOSTON COUPLE WED AT NASHUA

FAT MEN ON DECK FOR BIG TIME IN TOWN

Next to the opening of the aviation meet, the biggest thing in town to-morrow will be the beginning of the three-days' meeting of the New England Fat Men's Club.

But there is no jealousy between the fat men and the birdmen. Only they don't indulge in quite the same kind of sport. That's all. Yoh can wake a silk purse out of a sow's ear, maybe; but you can't make aviators out of the members of the New England Fat Men's Club. They aren't built that way.

If you see any part of Washington street collapse to-morrow, you'll know that four or more members of the Fat Men's Club happened to meet at the same spot—big spot.

Quinby is the King Pin.

They are the real avoirdupois goods, these fat fellows, big, jolly and proud of their weight.

The King Pin of them all is W. D. Quinby, the Portland-street candy man. He is fattest of all. He weighs 305 pounds. So he is President of the Club.

John Towne of Portland, Me. (280 lbs.), is first vice-president; E. C. Robertson of Rhode Island, (265 lbs.), second vice-president.

Some of the Bostonians in this fatty aggregation include:

W. C. Adams, Boston, (215); E. E. Allen, West Somerville, (215); H. B. Alexander, Somerville, (225); John C. Archer, Boston, (235); E. W. Hawkins, Medford, (238½); Charles E. Holgdon, West Roxbury, (243); J. C. Holmes, Cambridge, (215½), and several others.

There are 2,700 members of the club. Their aggregate weight is set at the gentle total of 400 tons (approximately).

High Tide is Predicted.

This will be the sixth annual convention of the club, which is growing every year, both numerically and individually.

To-morrow night the heavyweights will attend the Castle Square Theatre. The attention of the building department of the city is respectfully called to the fact. Sunday the club will worship at Tremont Temple, after which it will descend upon Revere Beach. The spectacle of all 2,700 members in bathing will be diverting, as well as a cause of extreme high tide. The amusement places of Revere have been warned ahead, and all doorways are to be widened for the event.

Monday the fat ones will go to Rass Point for the annual athletic (?) games.

NAKED IN NEW YORK.

The remarkable next-to-nature aspirement of "Oriental" dancers, which hides and flourishes in half-nude distance of the crowded summer population on earth, and fears only newspapers and police, is noted Sunday's

BOSTON NOW HAS 206,897 VOTERS

The annual supplemental listing of voters in Boston has closed, with 67 names added to the list published, when the police finished their house-to-house canvass during the first week in April. There are now 206,897 citizens that are eligible to cast ballots at the coming State primaries, 3,807 more than the number listed a year ago. William H. Dwyer of Dorchester avenue, filed his name three minutes before the supplemental list closed, having sped from Brookline to Pemberton square in an automobile in forty minutes.

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 2, 1910

Would American Citizens Like---For Each---A Year in the Army?

We Think Not. And We Think the Result of Such a Scheme Would Surprise Mr. Morton and Others.

Mr. Paul Morton, president of one of the biggest life insurance companies in the world, builder up and manager of various railroad enterprises, is a capable, intelligent citizen.

He knows what is good for himself, good for his friends and associates.

But we are inclined to think that in one respect at least he is very much mistaken as to what would be good for the United States of America.

Mr. Morton thinks that it is a good thing to have a big army in which every man is compelled to serve whether he wants to or not. And he believes it would be fine for America to compel every man in his youth to spend one year in the army of the United States.

Here is exactly what he says:

"The most prosperous country I saw abroad was Germany. I did not see a beggar there, and I was very much surprised to note the healthy condition of both the commerce and the children of the country. The population of Germany is increasing very rapidly, without much immigration. I am quite convinced that one of the greatest things that benefits Germany is the enforced military service which every male inhabitant has to render to his country, and I am not at all sure that enforced military service for the United States for perhaps a year only might not be a most desirable thing for this country. It teaches discipline, both mental and physical. It teaches men to have respect for themselves and respect for law and order, and I believe it improves a man's citizenship and makes him more patriotic. I believe it teaches concentration of mind and order, and I think it is one of the causes of the prosperity of the German nation."

We have many distinguished citizens coming back from Europe—most of them arrive with views and opinions which they kindly distribute.

Mr. Morton may fairly claim to have brought back at least ONE ORIGINAL view.

For something over one hundred years the people in America have been congratulating themselves upon the fact that they did NOT have to join the army if they didn't want to. We have been under the impression that it is a good thing for a man to live free, to do as he likes, with his own life—to be a soldier ALL the time or never.

Mr. Morton, having carefully studied Germany, in which country every man is compelled to enter the army, and serve from one to four years, tells us that America and Americans would be better off if the rule of compulsory military service were applied here.

It would be amusing if that rule could be applied—for a few minutes. Such a howl would go up in this country—notably from the too prosperous young sons of too prosperous citizens—as this country has never heard.

We are inclined to think, however, that when Mr. Morton comes to reflect more deliberately he will decide that the United States does not need compulsory military service just now.

No one will deny that it is lucky that we have not had compulsory military service in the past. The country owes a great deal to the military policy of Europe which has driven hundreds of thousands of the best young men to this country TO ESCAPE DISTASTEFUL, COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE.

We could imagine no more effective way of milking this country of its vitality and future than a system compelling men to enter the army and spend a year of their lives marching up and down, wearing fancy uniforms, and saluting fancifully dressed officers.

Forced military service of one year would take out of every man's life THE BEST YEAR OF THAT LIFE AND WASTE IT.

The United States, in a generation, develops at least twenty millions of men.

Does Mr. Morton realize that if each one of those men served a year in the army, the total would be twenty million years of human life thrown away?—quite a large sum of human life.

Not only would every man be compelled to waste a year of his life in the army, but he would be compelled to spend, in the army, a year in which he would have been most useful as a worker, in the present, or most usefully employed as a student preparing himself for work in the future.

Germany and the United States are different—as Mr. Morton knows.

There is no doubt at all that compulsory military service in Germany, a heavy load on the tax-payer, a dreadful injustice to the individual, HAS DONE GREAT GOOD. It has done good in various ways—one of which perhaps does not occur to Mr. Morton.

In Germany, before the military service was forced upon all men, there were millions of humble German peasants who lived and died close to the cottages in which they were born.

They wore the leather breeches that belonged to their grandfathers. Before they were fifty, their shoulders were bent over, their bodies were out of shape, their eyes were on the ground. And when they looked up, they used to pull off their caps hastily AT THE SIGHT OF ANY MAN WITH A BLACK COAT ON.

These millions of Germans, before military service was forced upon them, lived and died convinced that other men were better than they were, that they ought to be content to live the lives of poor, half-fed brutes.

The bodies of these German peasants were twisted out of shape, their backbones were never straight from the cradle to the grave.

Those backbones were bent over by hard labor, by too little food, AND BY TOO GREAT RESPECT FOR THE ARROGANT, OVER-FED NOBLES THAT RULED THEM.

The German Emperor's army, COMPELLING EVERY MAN TO DO MILITARY SERVICE, WAS A FINE THING FOR THE BODIES OF THE GERMAN MEN. The sons of the peasants were trained in athletics to tell the right foot from the left, taught to stand straight, TO BREATHE DEEP, WHICH HAS BEEN WORTH MILLIONS TOLD TO THE GERMAN RACE IN INCREASED LABOR ALONE.

Would American Citizens Like---For Each---A Year in the Army?

A great deal, indeed, has been done for the peasants of Germany by that military service forced upon them.

But the military service in Germany did one thing most important of all—IT FREED THE MINDS OF THE GERMANS FROM DISTORTION, BESIDES FREEING THEIR BODIES FROM DISTORTION.

It compelled the German peasant to see the world, to meet and talk with other men.

The ignorant German peasant boy, from his little village, was taken to Berlin or some other great town—AND THERE HE TALKED WITH MEN WHO UNDERSTOOD CONDITIONS AND THAT HATED THE AUTHORITY MERCILESSLY RULING THEM.

Does it occur to Mr. Morton that the great party in Germany—the greatest radical party in the world—is THE SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF GERMANY?

And does it occur to him that that party had no existence except in the minds of a few men UNTIL COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE CHANGED HUMBLE, CRINGING, TIMID, AWESTRUCK PEASANTS INTO INDEPENDENT, THINKING MEN?

The little peasant boy in his village pulled off his cap every five minutes. Everything that wore a black coat was in his mind royal and venerable, and he, in his own estimation, was a poor worm.

They took him away from his little village, took him to the big cities. He was kicked and cuffed during the drill, called various names by the young aristocratic officers.

In the evening he had his talks over his pipe and his glass of beer with the old soldiers.

And at the next election, the German Emperor and his aristocratic friends, and all the members of the "General Staff" were amazed to hear that the Social-Democratic vote had again increased by as many votes as there had been discharges from the army that year.

The German Emperor has done a magnificent thing for Germany, with his compulsory military service, his training for all men. But he has done a very poor thing indeed—although he perhaps doesn't suspect it—for the Hohenzollern family, to which he belongs. He has trained minds as well as bodies. AND TRAINED MINDS DO NOT PERPETUALLY ENDURE THE DICTATION OF AN EMPEROR OR OF A FAMILY.

The Emperor imagines that his standing army strengthens his throne and his dynasty. He believes that, backed by what he proudly calls "My Army," he and his descendants can rule forever, keeping back enemies from abroad, putting down dissatisfaction from within.

A very serious mistake.

Those that know the German army best do not know to-day whether or not those hosts of trained "SOCIAL-DEMOCRATS" would fire upon their brothers of another nation if they were ordered to do so.

Thanks to the permanent standing army of Germany there will be in that country before many years shall have gone by a REPUBLIC instead of a ruling family of Hohenzollerns—and military service will be largely responsible.

In this country we haven't the same conditions. We haven't the ignorant peasants that need to be moved from their little villages in order to think a little for themselves.

But if Mr. Morton had his way about our standing army he would bring together the youth of the entire nation, making the North and the South, the East and the West meet and know each other AND UNITE IN HEARTY DETESTATION OF COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE—he might find on his hands in this country also a radical party that would make it as difficult for corporations to rule here as it will soon be difficult for Hohenzollerns to rule Germany.

His Pa Organizes a Baseball Team

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

Pa got up a baseball teem the other day, he was going to play a teem wich was got up by Billy Wood & Slim sed he had a teem wich cud beet any teem Pa cud get up, & he showed Pa a silver cup wich he had been given for having the best baseball teem on Noddle Iland, outside of the professhunals & a good many amature.

So Pa went & got his teem together, & one day after he had got up this teem they all went over & played at Wood Iland. Ma was laffing so hard to think of Pa being a baseball manager that she made Pa mad. She kep calling Pa the Peerless Leader, Doant ever go to Chicago, Ma told him, beekaus I doant want to see a grate man like Frank C[illegible] lose his job. You have plenty of m[illegible] Ma sed to Pa, altho I never see a [illegible] deel of it, & there is no sense of beeing a professhunal like Mister Chance out of his position.

Never mind, sed Pa, I will show you wen I cum back tonite that the teem wich I have picked out is a better teem than Billy Wood's. Having been a natural leader of men for years, Pa sed, I can inspire the brave boys under me to grater & moar valyunt efforts than Mister Wood can. In fact, sed Pa, we have seven made up a reel college yell, beeing that mosst of my teem is college boys. It goes like this:

Watch us slap them, jest like that,
We can hit & we can bat,
Bright young players all are we,
Eat 'em up, beat 'em up, tee hee hee.

Mercy, sed Ma, how thrilling. I wud like to be down there wen the game starts, sed Ma. I doant like to pose for a lady seer, but sumthing tells me that you & yure teem is going to git a awful kick in the slats. I doant know very much about the sporting guim, Ma sed, but it strikes me that a baseball teem wich has a college yell is very likely to be all to the St. Louis. However, sed Ma, if you will promise not to keep breakfast waiting to-morrow morning I shall set up & wait for you tonite. I await the result with grate interest.

Ma & me went over to the Jenkses nite, beekaus the Diamel [illegible] ing a meeting [illegible] it, & a [illegible] heart is Full of Ashes [illegible] Woman Will not Come. We had a dandy time, & about ten (10) oclock Ma & me went hoam. Pa hadent got hoom yet from his ball guim.

You see, Bobbie, Ma sed, pure father is not yet here. I dount seven know that he went to play a ball guim, sed Ma, how do I know that he is not down watching the Summer Widowers. He wud look much moar natcheral that way, sed Ma, than he wud in a player's uniform.

Jest then Pa calm in. His face was a mile long. We lost, he sed. We had them tied in the ninth inning & I went in to pitch. You see, it was this way——

If you went in to pitch, sed Ma, you dount have to explain.

The Upper Berth

By PERCY SHAW

I've seen the man of millions, who conquers as he goes.
And dreams of endless billions.
Turn whiter than the snows;
I've chortled when his swollen girth
Tolled outraged to an upper berth.

I've seen our next door neighbor.
The one with social airs,
Who scorns our household labor
And talks of savoir faires,
Weep as she faced an upper berth.
While I below laughed loud with mirth

I've seen that chum from college
Who borrowed cash, alack,
And then with all his knowledge
Forgot to pay it back.
Fell on his head from upper three
And shake his fist in rage at me.

I've seen the bank official
Who never knows me now,
Smile with a bland, initial
And ceremonious bow;
And I've remarked: "Ah, going up?"
While happiness o'erflowed my cup.

I find that life's a pleasure,
And somehow as we go
We're apt to get good measure
And harvest as we sow.
But let me tell you now, it's worth
A lot to get a lower berth.
